City-county library talks reach impasse as tempers flare

By DAVID LELAND

WITH THE very realistic prospect that county residents may be forced to pay up to $100 for a Harrison Memorial Library card, an impasse has been reached concerning continued county funding.

The current contract expires Dec. 31. "We've discussed the issues and now it's time to look at a contract," said Margaret Pelikan, library director, adding that a Monday, Aug. 5, deadline has been set for the county to respond.

Since 1972, the cities of Carmel, Pacific Grove, Monterey and Salinas have received partial funding from the county to offset expenditures for serving non-residents.

But Bob McElroy, county library administrative services officer, told The Pine Cone, "I honestly don't think there will be anything by Aug. 5; we don't have a meeting scheduled."

County Librarian Dallas Shaffer added that until the Carmel library withdraws a free bookmark it is giving patrons, the county will only negotiate with the other three cities in the contract.

The bookmark espouses the inequities being dealt Carmel's library because of non-residents using the facility.

Pelikan said that last year the county gave $82,000 to Carmel for materials and programs, while the city received $35,000 from the state.

Statistics indicate, however, that 76 percent of the Carmel library's patrons live outside of the city limits. In other words, of the 12,000 card holders, only 3,500 are city residents.

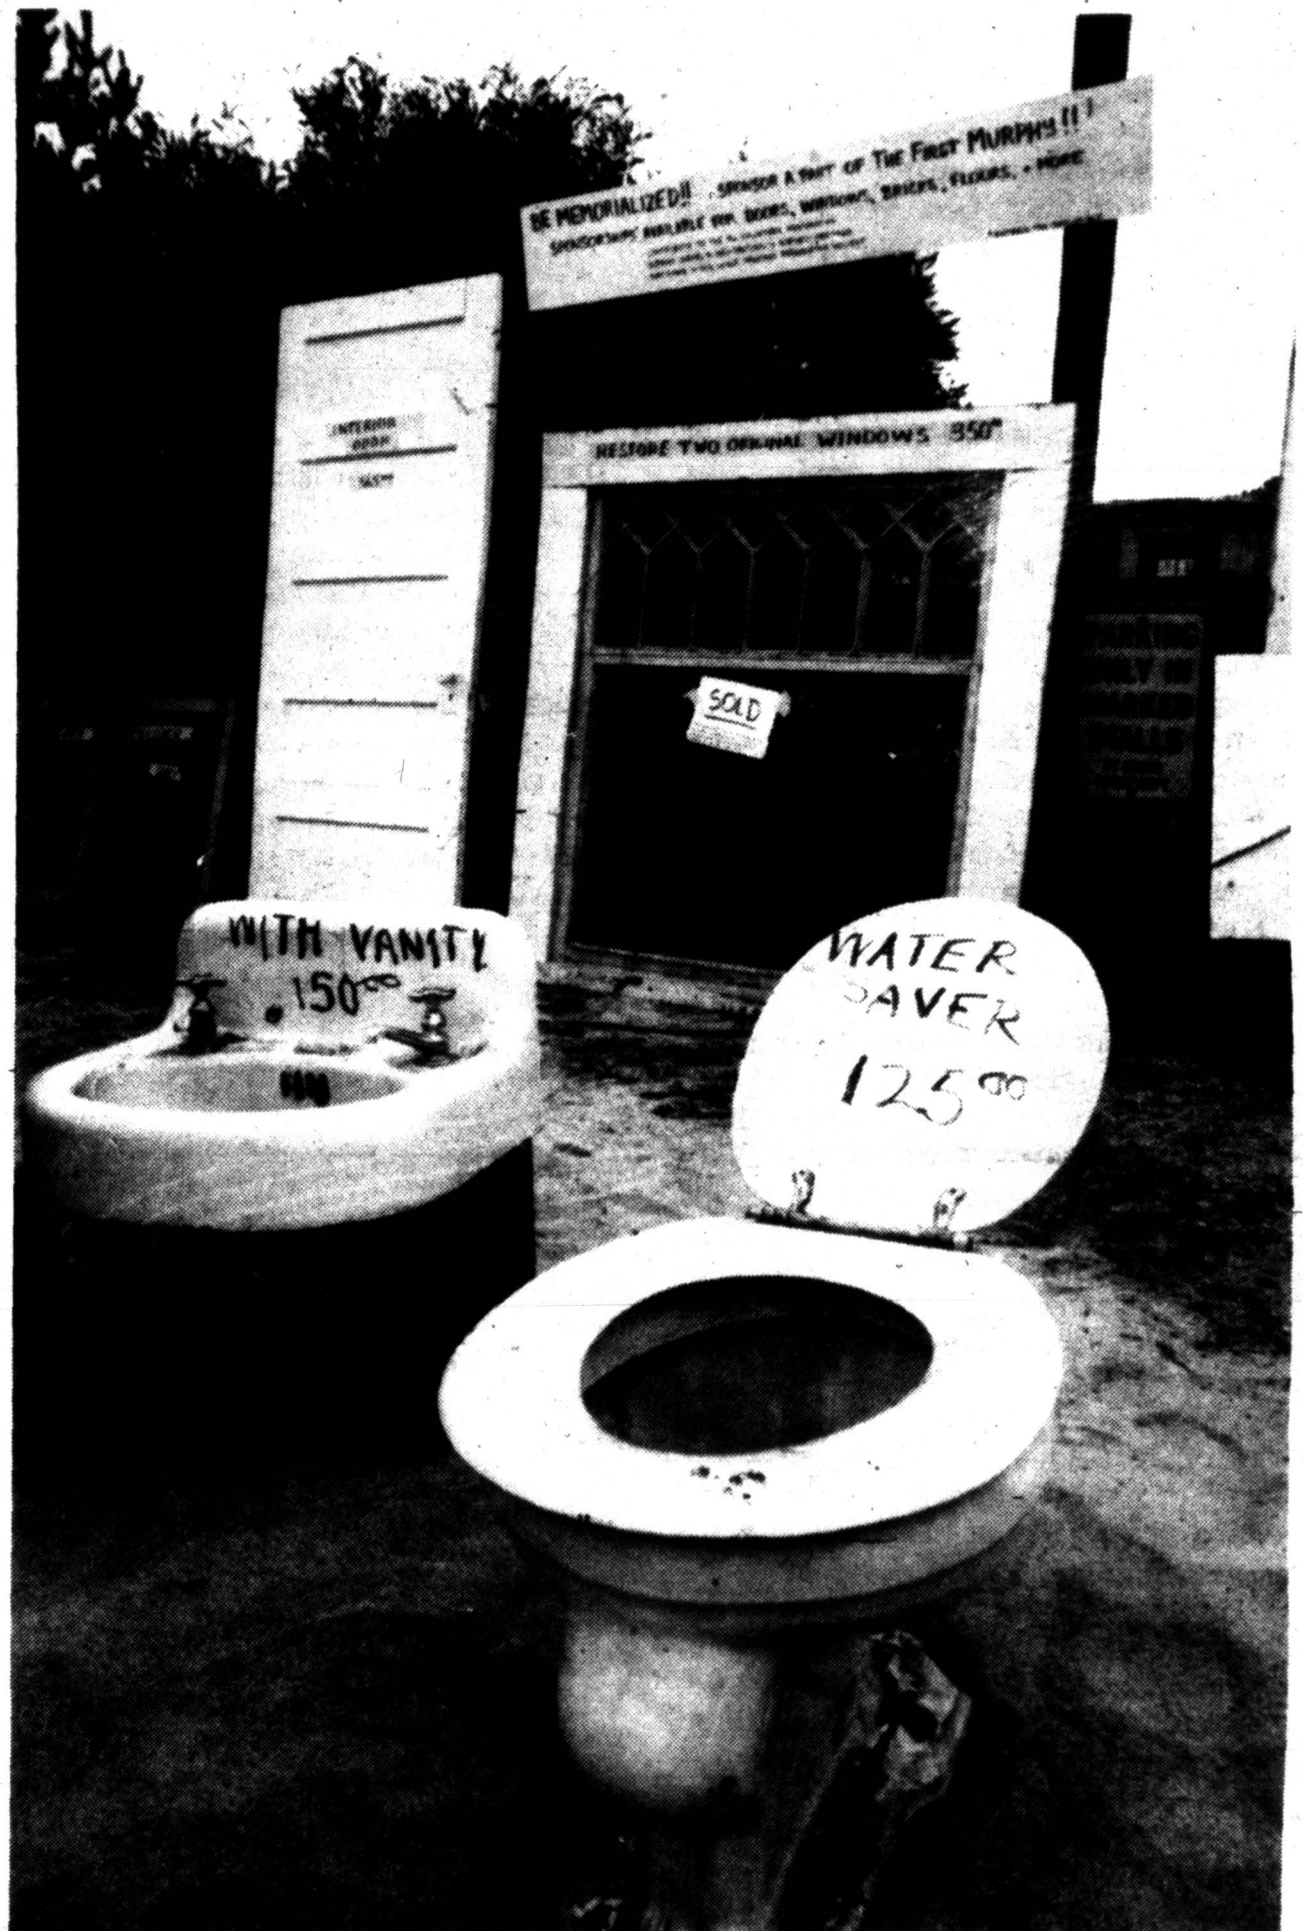

Pelikan said that, while 30 percent of all

Raise the roof

A SIZEABLE crowd showed up for a roof-raising party sponsored by the First Murphy Committee of the Carmel Heritage, attracted by the loping World Beat music of Carmel reggae band Jonah and the Whale Watchers (above), free refreshments and the opportunity to have their names associated with portions of the house. For a donation one could have his or her name attached to a door, window, even a sink or toilet to be installed in the under-renovation house located at the corner of Sixth Avenue and Lincoln Street. The house is the first one designed and built by Carmel's master builder, R.J. Murphy, when he was only a teen. As part of the ceremonies a young tree was placed on top of the roof, a ritual practiced in Scandinavian countries for good luck, according to organizer and First Murphy Committee project manager Enid Sales. A poem was read by Carmel City Councilwoman Barbara Brooks in commemoration of the event. Proceeds from the event, which included newly minted First Murphy T-shirt and sweatshirts, go to refurbish the house. (Mac McDonald photos.)

PC opts to carry over commercial zoning discussions

By MAC McDONALD

IF CARMEL Planning Commission members were unsure of their direction after the July 17 town hall meeting, they took a few steps to clarify their course at the July 24 meeting.

In the latest in a series of meetings on

'I believe this is an opportunity for the planning commission to really do some real planning, and take time to do that (what) with the vastness of the issues before us. It requires a lot of study and time.'

possible changes to the city's commercial zoning, commissioners approved several motions that brought them closer to a final report to the Carmel City Council.

That report, however, will not be ready for the council's next meeting, which is scheduled for Tuesday, Aug. 6 (see story in this issue). Instead the commission will seek a minimum of 90 days to get more input from business groups and citizens and to meet with city agencies such as the Parking Committee and the Landlord/Tenant Committee.

"We're tackling a very large planning issue that affects the whole city," said Carla Ramsey, commission chairwoman, in explaining the need for more time.

The motions focused on three basic questions asked of commissioners in their background report prepared by the city planning staff:

1. Are the zoning provisions implementing the General Plan?
2. Should the range of uses allowed in each or any district be expanded?
3. Should the land use classifications, definitions and standards be simplified, updated or made more clear and provide more flexibility?

The commission's task is to come up with a report/recommendation to the council that attempts to answer those three questions and thus whether the city's commercial zoning and its regulations need to be revised or updated.

Given the volume and complexity of information the commission has received so far from individual members of the public, merchants, citizens and business groups, and the staff itself, commissioners have felt that a black and white answer to the council's concerns may not be possible.

"I believe this is an opportunity for the planning commission to really do some real planning," said Ramsey, "and take time to do that (what) with the vastness of the issues before us. It requires a lot of study and time."

"I have a pretty fixed idea of what I like to see happen, but I was interested in seeing both sides," added Commissioner Philip Coniglio about the July 17 town hall meeting. "I'm all for simplifying the planning process and making it a user-friendly system, but I also don't want to jump into something too hastily and find out we made a mistake down the road. I've become a little more flexible and open."

While commissioners approved four motions that day in an attempt to answer the three questions posed to them by the staff, they also asked the city council for

Difficult decision

Dear Editor:

Your July 25 article on the water board's discussion of desalination reports that I "stopped just short of condemning the desalination proposal altogether." This is not an accurate interpretation of my position.

I believe a new dam is the best solution to our water supply problems, as it is the only solution that also restores the Carmel River environment. However, we do not at this time know how long it will take to obtain permits to build a dam. It may be 10 years, or it could be never. My recurring nightmare is that we get 10 years further down the road pursuing only a dam and then find that the dam will not be allowed. Therefore, we do need to hedge our bets with desalination. On the other hand, if we pursue desalination in the short term, it may become even more difficult to obtain a dam in the long term. It is a very difficult decision.

I strongly support pursuing desalination to the point where we have a firm proposal that can be put before the voters. My concern expressed at the July 22 board meeting was that the "fast track" budget approved by the board appeared to involve the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars beyond what would be needed to prepare the issue for a vote. I did not want to spend those funds at this time.

I believe this has not been worked out. I expect that proposals for the desalination EIR and related studies on our board agenda for action August 26 include only those studies needed to develop information required for an informed public vote.

Ultimately, the community will have to decide on desalination versus a dam versus trying to pursue both desalination and a dam. Making the right decision on this difficult issue is more important than making a fast decision. Personally, I will not make up my own mind before the end of the year at the earliest. Our EIR/EIS on the dam comes out next month. We will obtain comments on this EIR/EIS from the regulatory agencies, and then we need to sit down with these agency representatives in a meeting chaired by Congressman Panetta to talk turkey about the prospects of the dam. Only then will I have the information required to make a decision on the role desalination should play in our water supply planning.

Polite reasoning

Dear Editor:

Well Mr. Eastwood, I think you need a comeuppance. I've been one of your fans, but I don't care for your High and Mighty attitude. You'd be surprised what a little humble humility and politeness might bring you.

I, as well as some other resident Carmelites were beginning to go along with the CBA idea of the zone-extending to Fifth Avenue and Seventh Avenue. It seemed fair to go clear to the corner.

I believe the council was carefully weighing the pros and cons, and looking at fair, right, etc. But here you go again — spewing out missiles at our well-liked elected officials because you don't like the city laws in place; laws, I am told, you knew about, that went into place when you were in office.

Our elected council members are spending many hours, working to find ways to try to keep Carmel's charm, yet still be a great place to live. You would, I am sure, run again for mayor and fire one and all once again, just to get your own way. This time, your building is lovely and fits the area.

Now, relax. With polite reasoning, a few people may change their minds.

Abused and mistreated

Dear Editor:

It's time to acknowledge that the City of Carmel, its officers and staff, and, yes, even the citizenry of Carmel, have abused and mistreated the Laubs in the past and, even now, must accept responsibility for denying them the opportunity to maximize their investments in Carmel.

Fair-minded people will support the Laubs if they decide to move on to another town where their creative talents will surely find enthusiastic support and acceptance.

Our loss will be some other lucky city's gain.

Dismal 29th

Dear Editor:

I trust the folks who wanted to raise our taxes to better the school program have noticed the results of the National Math Test Scores. Just in case some folks didn't notice, here are the published results; North Dakota came in first and California a dismal 29th.

It bothers me, somewhat, that a "backwoods" state like North Dakota is so far ahead of "sophisticated" California. At first I thought the answer must be real simple. Probably North Dakota spends more per pupil than California but, no, that's not the reason, California already spends twice as much as North Dakota per pupil.

Well, could it be their kids are smarter than ours? I live in a neighborhood with a lot of kids, and I know them and will put them up against any other kids anywhere, anytime. Our kids are plenty smart, that's for sure. Don't tell me that's the reason.

The Dakota state school superintendent thought the reason he came in first might be less TV viewing by his pupils as compared to those in other States.

So, our state superintendent, Bill

EDITORIAL

A joyous process

THE TEMPOS and ambitions of 1990s America too often make us forget that little things really do mean a lot.

And by "little things," we don't mean a second Mercedes or extra month on the Spanish Riviera.

We mean the seemingly casual and yet fiercely caring touch of your special love's hand when circumstances have you low.

We mean sunlight painting children's hair as they swing in the park, hoot, invent circle dances, climb, caper, sing.

We mean a fact that emerges out of the second annual Carmel Valley Fiesta that's planned for Saturday and Sunday. As a separate news story reports, the event will include parades, much live music, food and crafts booths, 10-K run, an old-fashioned street dance.

It all sounds like big fun. What caught our eye, however, was the Parade of Clowns.

This will start at noon Sunday, offering cash prizes for "best clown" in the 3-9, 10-16 and 16-80 age brackets. The latter category is no typographical error — 16 to EIGHTY.

Now, that may seem an insignificant fact within the daily rush and tumble of "hard" news. We think the nicely significant gesture by fiesta organizers deserves comment.

Anyone who's half-awake can see examples of older citizens being pushed aside by this youth-obsessed society. (It cannot be called a "culture" as long as their rich experience goes ignored.)

By creating that age division for a clown parade, fiesta planners send us a message well worth getting: older residents have a great sense of play and may well enjoy putting on the whiteface, fright wig and long garish shoes. Why, some "oldster" might even do a lively jig and end up pocketing the prize.

What a fine way to help smash down the false categorization that casts our resourceful older citizens as cheerless and useless lumps. (If someone over 80 got together a clown suit, we'd bet the house and lot that the aforementioned planners would allow participation.)

Everybody who lives long enough will grow old. We congratulate Carmel Valley Fiesta's manifest conviction that the process can be joyous.

—John Detro

Honig, may be on to something. He probably figures if our taxes are raised high enough we won't be able to afford TV sets and ergo less TV viewing for our kids. But then most families in California already have several TV sets so that won't work.

I thought possibly the weather might be the answer. They have real cold winters in North Dakota, but then we have real cold summers here in Carmel so that evens things out weatherwise. But hold on, we don't have SNOW here in Carmel and do they ever have SNOW in the Dakotas. They not only have SNOW but WIND too and there you have it! SNOW and WIND make DRIFTS. They must have high class BUSES to buck those DRIFTS. Could be Mercedes-Benz BUSES.

That's probably the reason their scores are high. Those Dakota kids ride in swell buses. What we need are new buses and we will be right up there with North Dakota.

Nihil nequam est praesumendum!

A national treasure

Dear Editor:

I'd like to add my support to those in Carmel who are determined that the speculative building and extensive remodeling of older structures will be tightly controlled in the future.

The City of Carmel is a national treasure. We would all be appalled if English country towns were torn down and rebuilt by Disneyland. In the same way, Carmel residents are increasingly alarmed at the giant cottages built on tiny lots ready to house groups of tourists. Tourists who, the speculators apparently believe, love skewered stonework, shiny brass and no trees.

Also dismaying residents is structural remodeling to supposedly allow rooms for every conceivable member of extended families. Of course, the remodeling obstructs views and blocks sunlight of the neighbors and changes the character of woodsy unpretentious characteristic of true Carmel.

One argument used to allow these changes for the ugly to take place is that if you allow one totally inappropriate structure you have to allow others to follow.

Too bad, Carmel.

Carmel readies itself for Hodges property design

By DAVID LELAND

WITH A little luck and continued tenacity, the Rio Park Planning and Use Committee will bring tentative plans for the Hodges property before the Carmel City Council this fall.

The months following the city's $1.65 million purchase of the 6.5-acre parcel in January of 1990 have been spent addressing needs and concerns of neighbors, plus following strict environmental regulations.

"All the pieces had to go into the pot to get a conceptual plan," said Greg D'Ambrosio, director of administrative services. "That's why it's taken this amount of time."

The property lies behind the Carmel Mission, bordered on the east by the Junipero Serra School ballfield, the south by Carmel Area Wastewater District and the west by Mission Ranch and state park and recreation lands. The Carmel River runs through the property.

Tentative plans currently see construction of a Little League baseball diamond, two horseshoe pits, two picnic areas, children's playground, restrooms and an interconnecting trail system which will lead to Mission Trails Park.

"This is the hybrid concept based on the influence of everybody," said D'Ambrosio, adding that any buildings proposed for the land would "maintain a rustic character and quality."

Most recently, the ball has been in the county Water Resource Agency's court.

"Virtually the whole thing (land) is in the 100-year floodplain," said Owen Stewart, assistant water resources engineer, adding that he is suggesting that all structures be set back 200 feet from the Carmel River.

IN PREPARATION for future development of the site, the city has been ridding the Hodges property of un-

Stewart said he was optimistic that engineering issues concerning flood concerns could be easily addressed, and the project signed.

"Because they (Carmel) brought us on board early, they were able to include the floodplain issues in their design," he said, adding that a planned picnic area would need study, as would the land leading to Mission Ranch, which must provide a smooth transition.

After water resources approves the project, the city council will consider its design before moving it on to the state Coastal Commission. The city is also poised to begin annexation proceedings with the Local Agency Formation Commission.

D'Ambrosio defended the city's purchase of the property, adding that buying real estate on the Monterey Peninsula is always a good investment in the long run.

Last year the city made payments of $256,000 on the Hodges property. The financing includes a separate bond issue sold to renovate the park. Both bonds will mature in 2010.

When the council approved purchase of the property, then-Councilwoman Elinor Laiolo voted against the deal because she believed it was too costly. During that meeting, Mayor Jean Grace disagreed.

"I think it was worth it to the city. I think the community is going to be glad we have it after a while," she said. "I think the city paid a lot of money for it, but you can't quantify such a purchase."

During the January 1990 city council meeting, Councilman Ken White noted that every city council, since 1969, had expressed interest in buying the Hodges property. There had been talk of using the parcel as a city corporation yard.

But even if plans are approved by the council and state agencies, it is unlikely that the project will reach fruition immediately.

"We'll probably do this project in phases," D'Ambrosio said. "We don't want to do a grand development from the start; we want to make sure everything blends in."

Moreover, the plan appears to have become somewhat more ambitious fi-

'We'll probably do this project in phases. We don't want to do a grand development from the start; we want to make sure everything blends in.'

—Greg D'Ambrosio

nancially than forecast.

"It will probably be more than we set aside if we include every aspect," D'Ambrosio said. "We'll do what we can afford."

Of prime importance, D'Ambrosio said, is the landscaping and trail planned for the land.

"It will be a very usable open space and park," he said.

more time and direction in order to answer them fully.

Commissioner Brian Congleton took the first foray into the motions, tackling the first question by answering yes, but also asking for more time to "analyze whether the zoning provides the type of market place conditions for achieving the General Plan objectives and what amendments should be made." That motion was approved by a unanimous 7-0 vote.

The staff had suggested that an outside expert may be needed to answer the latter, but most commissioners did not look too favorably on that prospect. "That's a $25,000 report," said Commissioner Lindsay Hanna.

The commission then sailed through the second question, approving a motion to adopt the staff recommendation "that the planning commission recommend to the city council that there is a basis for amending zoning districts and the range of uses, but additional time is needed by the planning commission in examining the issue."

As for the third question, commissioners also needed more time to study five zoning code changes proposed by the staff, including: A. reducing and consolidating the number of SIC (Standard Industrial Classification) categories; B. Eliminating all "A" (administrative) uses; C. Converting some "C" (conditional uses) to permitted uses with standards, including a process for review by the planning commission for exceptions; D. Simplifying the use chart notes; and E. Remove the Ocean Avenue Overlay with a substitute design review process.

A motion to continue consideration of items A through D was carried by a 6-1 vote (with Hanna the lone dissenter). A second motion to consider item E as part of study was carried by a 5-0 vote (both Ramsey and Coniglio had to step down from that vote because of possible conflicts of interest — Ramsey's office and Coniglio's family business are located on Ocean Avenue).

Hanna voted against the first motion because he felt the commission could come up with more concrete recommendations to the council. "I can't believe we can't come up with some recommendations to the city council," he said.

Although not a public hearing, Ramsey opened the floor to members of the public to comment on the proceedings.

"I'm very, very encouraged at what we're hearing today," said Gary Luce, president of the Carmel Business Association board. "We had fears that this was going to be rushed through."

Luce said he hoped that the commission would weigh the results of a current survey of city businesses in making their report to the council. "The business community is affected by any and all changes."

CRITICAL CROSSROADS: Under current commercial zoning this intersection is in the city's Service Commercial district, whose boundary intersects about a third of the block. Changes being discussed by the Carmel Planning Commission could move the boundary to Seventh Avenue, a move that supporters say is an equitable solution and critics find invasive and an intensification of the commercial district. (Mac McDonald photo.)

Carmel pays respects to gracious humanitarian

"I am only one, but still I am one. I cannot do everything, but still I can do something, and because I cannot do everything, I will not refuse to do the something that I can do."

Edward Everett Hale

By DAVID LELAND

WITH THOSE poetic words nestled within a heart's reach, relatives and friends this week remembered Barbara Lysle for her love of life and dedication to humankind.

Lysle died in her Carmel home of respiratory failure after an extended illness July 26. She was 78.

"Barbara never grew old," said Carmel City Councilwoman Barbara Brooks, during a service at All Saints' Episcopal Church. "She continually tried new roads, learned new skills and did her best to make a better world."

Indeed, Lysle, who resigned from the Carmel Planning Commission in March because of health problems, embraced humanity to its fullest until the very end.

"I'm really amazed that at a time of life when society says you can slow down, it seems Barbara learned new things," said Brooks, who met Lysle five years ago when they both served on the board of directors for The New Forum, a group which promotes world peace.

It was Lysle who published, at her own expense, a monthly peace calendar in The Herald, which told people where events to promote world cooperation were to be held.

However, Lysle's penchant for peace began many years ago when she and her sister, Kathleen Dipenbrock, spoke often on the subject.

"She was a good big sister, and she cared a lot," said Dipenbrock, adding that Lysle was never one to mince words. "She knew where she stood; sometimes she came on strong and people could be put off by this."

But despite the fact that Lysle laid no claim to organized religion, her sister said she personified a practical spirituality.

"She did it all naturally and she did it all well," Dipenbrock. "Her life was divine, whether she realized it or not."

Lysle, who moved to Carmel in 1973 with her late husband, Joseph, grew up in the Bay Area and spent summer vacations in Carmel.

She moved to Pasadena at the onset of World War II, where she worked as head of personnel for women civilian employees. After the war, she became an interior decorator and operated a lamp and home accessories shop for 30 years.

"Her name was a household name...standing for excellence and quality," said a friend of 50 years at the service. "She was, above all, a lady of impeccable taste in everything she did — a reflection of elegance all the way through."

Upon being named to the planning commission by Mayor Jean Grace in June of 1990, Lysle espoused the joys of small-town life to Carmel Pine Cone reporter Nancy Hills.

FRIENDS AND relatives of longtime Carmel resident Barbara Lysle said goodbye to the former Carmel Planning Commissioner this week during services at All Saints' Episcopal Church. Lysle died of respiratory failure July 26.

"I always felt that when you came to Carmel, it was a place where you could put your car in the garage and never have to take it out — until you left," she said.

Lysle also served on the Carmel Residents Association before stepping down to serve on the planning commission.

"She was a lovely lady," said Carmel Planning Commissioner Lindsay Hannah. "She was a very good commissioner, especially after looking after residents and the trees."

Lysle is survived by her sister, a brother, Frederick Blumberg of Lafayette; daughters Martha Roegiers of Truckee and Mary Lewis of Manhattan Beach; a son, Richard Scott Lysle of Marina Del Rey; and six grandchildren.

By her request, Lysle's ashes will be scattered at sea.

Caltrans says Carmel traffic would lessen with new freeway

By DAVID LELAND

A MULTI-LANE freeway running through Hatton Canyon would significantly reduce traffic in Carmel as motorists dodging crowded conditions on Highway 1 dwindle, according to a Caltrans report to be heard by the Carmel City Council.

The non-action item will be presented to the council at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 6, in the council chambers at city hall, located on Monte Verde Street south of Ocean Avenue.

"Construction of the Hatton Canyon Freeway will, by providing additional capacity on a separate, parallel facility, substantially reduce demand on the existing highway," the report said. "This reduced demand will, in turn, improve the situation on the local street network by diminishing the need for vehicles to detour through the city and by providing improved access to the existing highway at signalized intersections."

The proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway project would see a major freeway through the canyon, with interchanges at Carpenter Street and Carmel Valley Road, and a new bridge crossing the Carmel River.

Known as "The Carmel Area Residential Street Protection Study," Caltrans' report was prepared in response to the state Coastal Commission staff's concerns on what the project's impacts would be on residential streets.

Working with city and county traffic engineers, Caltrans monitored cars cutting through Carmel on a weekday and weekend by using a license plate survey.

License plate numbers were recorded, as well as the time of day, at Carpenter Street, north of Second Avenue; Junipero Street, north of the Second Avenue intersection; and Rio Road, south of the Junipero Street intersection.

The result: on Sunday, Aug. 26, 269 (28.5 percent) of the surveyed 941 vehicles travelling northbound were cutting through Carmel.

Caltrans suggests that its survey likely missed a number of cars who bypass Highway 1 using lesser-travelled roads.

One of the highway's major supporters, Caltrans said that "current traffic studies estimate that approximately 60 percent of the current and future traffic through the Route 1 corridor will use the Hatton Canyon Freeway."

Also in its study, Caltrans reports that signalized intersections at Carpenter Street, Ocean Avenue and Rio Road will become more congested as traffic levels rise, pushing cars back into the community as they wait to enter the highway.

"As congestion on the existing highway continues to grow, the amount of time available for the side street traffic to access the highway decreases," the report said. "The result is that traffic on the side street backs up into the community, affecting the residential area of Carmel."

In supporting construction of the Hatton

Canyon Freeway, Caltrans said the majority of through traffic will be removed from Highway 1, diffusing traffic from local streets.

If council members wish to take action on any portion of the report, they will have to reschedule for an upcoming meeting.

In other matters, the council will: • Take up a continued item from the June meeting concerning the way the mayoral appointments are made.

Currently, the mayor makes appointments to the city's boards and commissions, taking into account the input of the council. However, Councilman Jim Wright has suggested that such a method may not be in the best interests of the city.

• Hear Mayor Jean Grace's nominee to fill a vacant seat on the Harrison Memorial Library Board of Trustees, resulting from the death of Richard Little.

Grace has nominated Richard Walbert, a retired investment banker, to complete Little's term, which runs until September of 1993.

"I believe he has the ideal qualities to share the term of Dick Little in thoughtful service to the library," Grace said.

City-county library talks stalled as tempers flare its books are lent to county residents, the county's involvement represents only 14 percent of the library's budget.

Harrison Memorial Library operates on an annual budget of about $700,000.

"The reality is that free public library is not free, somebody has to pay for it," Pelikan said. "The county has never paid the cost of service, nobody expects that."

What the city does expect, and require, Pelikan said, is that the county at least continue its present level of involvement.

Despite a county budget crunch, with fiscal hearings set to begin in September, 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman said that she will fight to maintain funding.

"Everyone's hope is that we'll maintain the libraries to the maximum extent possible, considering the budget situation," she said, adding that libraries represent "rock-bottom, essential service."

Strasser Kauffman also echoed a mandate from a county-hired consultant, who recommended that the current contracts be maintained.

"The librarian (Shaffer) has been given a clear directive to rescue the libraries and cooperate with the cities," she said. "She's under pressure to deliver."

Meanwhile, Pelikan said that, if the contract is not renewed, residents will also feel the cut.

"If we don't have library cooperation, everybody suffers," she said, referring to the joint status between the four cities.

Amenities such as Carmel residents being able to use the Monterey library or borrowing books from other branches would be lost, she said.

Shaffer told The Pine Cone that the county will continue to work toward a resolution.

"It's a very grim time for all of us," she said. "We are very, very anxious to work out a contract with the cities so service can continue uninterrupted."

PG city officials deny charges of racial harassment

By PAUL WOLF

WHILE NOT commenting on details, Pacific Grove city officials denied charges that race played a role in the way a group of visiting black gospel singers and family members were stopped, detained and questioned in front of McDonald's in PG on May 10.

An investigation is now in the hands of the district attorney's office, which will determine whether PG police harassed nine black men, women and children who drove in three cars to the restaurant after performing at the PG Middle School that evening.

The individuals are Dorothy Stanton, who filed a written complaint with the city, fellow singers with the Anderson Sisters, based in Pittsburg, CA, and family members.

Stanton, in her complaint, wrote race was the main factor in why the group was detained and questioned for "15 to 20 minutes," and "treated like unwanted outsiders...like common criminals."

"We, along with our children, were extremely afraid that something terrible was going to happen," she wrote. "The young ones were crying."

City disputes charge

on behalf of the city, holding off on a detailed response until after the investigation but disputing the basic charge as well as certain facts as presented by Stanton.

"The city is certain that the independent investigation will reveal that no racially motivated activity occurred," the statement said. "Until the report and conclusions of the investigation are available, the city will have no further comment on the allegation."

Stanton submitted the complaint to the city, addressed to PG Mayor Florence Schaefer. The three-page letter, dated July 16, requests an investigation. It also asks for $25,000 restitution for "irreparable harm to all of us in our group," and assurance "that this is not acceptable policy of the City of Pacific Grove or the County of Monterey."

Stanton wrote that five patrol cars detained the group, with officers, "some with their hands on their gun cases, questioning us as to who we were, what (we) were doing..." She claimed instances of rude behavior, described "flashlights (shown) in our faces," and recounted being followed out of the city.

The city's version is different — that the individuals were detained no more than five minutes, and that three patrol cars maximum were involved. The statement also denies that the group was shadowed out of town.

Moreover, the city reports that officers were responding to a call from a woman who said the group was causing a disturbance.

"The officers made contact with the drivers in the vehicles carrying the group, checked their driver's licenses and, having determined that there was no substance to the woman's statements, allowed the group to leave."

The statement added, "It is estimated from the tape of the license check procedure provided by county communications that the contact took well under five minutes. None of the actions was taken on the basis of the race of the group's members."

The woman who made the call, it turned out, was arrested for public drunkenness.

Politicians take interest

Stanton, who does an early-morning gospel show on Oakland radio station KDIA, recounted her version of the incident over the air. And word of what she said then reached Sen. Daniel Boatwright, D-Contra Costa, who contacted Assemblyman Sam Farr, D-Carmel.

Farr spoke to Monterey County Supervisor Sam Karas, and the assemblyman arranged a meeting with PG officials for June 17.

Those leaders, as well as a representative from the Monterey Affirmative Action office and a representative from the NAACP in Seaside, attended the meeting. Stanton relayed her side of the story and asked for an apology.

One person who attended the meeting but requested anonymity said, "I honestly believe what she wanted was just an apology and then let it go."

None was forthcoming. Stanton's letter describes an unsympathetic reception to her "effort to resolve this issue amicably."

Apology was not an option

In a phone interview with this newspaper, PG City Attorney George Thacher said an apology was not an option, since the facts of the case were still in flux. The only issue at hand was preparing for an official investigation to get to the bottom of what happened, he said.

The city attorney said he and Maudlin suggested Stanton write an official request for an investigation, which she did.

Maudlin has asked the district attorney's office to take on the investigation to allow for an independent review.

Planning commission opts to continue zoning hearings

Although still in the preliminary stages, the survey so far discloses that almost three-quarters of the business community favors some type of change.

"What the business people are saying is something is not working and we need some changes," said Toni Jepson, CBA executive director.

Unlike at the town hall meeting, most of those in attendance were in favor of changes to the commercial zone and the current direction of the planning commission. One resident did warn commissioners against what he said were statements intended to "drive a wedge" between residents and the business community.

As for the commission, even with a 90-day "reprieve," it may still find a solution that satisfies everyone's wishes an elusive goal.

"I didn't hear anybody propose solutions," at the July 17 town hall meeting, said Commissioner Stephen Poohar, especially the call for more "quality" and "resident-serving" businesses. "Those are nice statements but unless we have a plan to achieve those wishes, we're left without a solution."

Gospel promoters pledge to continue music in PG

By JOHN DETRO

AS THE District Attorney's office investigates whether a black gospel singing group was harassed by Pacific Grove police following a concert there, show producers Melvin and Audrey Williams pledged to continue staging such events in the city.

Complaints of the alleged harassment came from Dorothy Stanton, Oakland gospel radio personality and member of the group which appeared for Melvin and Audrey (M&A Productions) at Pacific Grove Middle School Auditorium in May. "Dorothy phoned us the next day," Melvin Williams said. "My wife and I believe her (version of the purported encounter). I feel kind of bitter about it, and was really surprised when I saw local press reports. But we definitely will continue to bring in gospel shows over there."

Audrey Williams voiced assent while her husband continued: "We'll get in touch with Pacific Grove police. We'd like to hear their side of the story. And we want to find out what needs to be done so that this sort of thing doesn't happen again."

A&M Productions of Seaside has been producing high-level gospel programs at the same site for about the past two years. They've presented such headliners as Al Green, Mighty Clouds of Joy, Five Blind Boys of Alabama, The Soul Stirrers, Gospel Hummingbirds—some of the very best. They have The Joyful Commanders, black gospel songsters from New Orleans, coming in there Aug. 17.

"And we'll offer major shows in September and October," Melvin said. "This (alleged harassment) never happened before. We certainly hope nothing like it ever comes up again. Largely white audiences have responded to our efforts so beautifully—you can be sure that we'll keep on keeping on."

Oakland civil rights attorney consulted by Dorothy Stanton

OAKLAND attorney John Burris, a civil rights lawyer with a substantial track record of police misconduct cases, told this newspaper on Wednesday that he had consulted with Dorothy Stanton about the purported conflict involving Pacific Grove police officers.

"She asked me for an explanation of her legal options," Burris said during a telephone interview from his office. "There's always the possibility that she'll choose to file a lawsuit."

And: "At this point, I have not been retained by her. She said the children were traumatized. I think the lady wants an apology as much as anything and a policy statement that certain people are not treated that way in Pacific Grove as a matter of course. Again, she might pursue compensation through legal means."

Burris agreed that Dorothy Stanton had "called out the troops" via the long letter written by her to present her version of the situation.

Copies of that communication were sent by the experienced media person to influential black lawmakers — State Assembly Speaker Willie Brown, Congressman Ron Dellums, Oakland Mayor Elihu Harris — as well as to local officials and such groups as the San Francisco Bay Area Religious Announcers Guild, Bay Area Black Media Coalition and the NAACP.

BARBARA SHIPNUCK ELECTED TO ASSOCIATION OF COUNTIES BOARD

Monterey County Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck was elected to the board of directors of the National Association of Counties (NACo) at its annual meeting July 12-16, in Salt Lake County, Utah. NACo represents more than two thirds of the nation's 3,110 counties. It has founded in 1935 and has its headquarters in Washington, D.C.

For the past two years Supervisor Shipnuck has chaired NACo's Health Steering Committee and was 1990-91 president of WON (Women Officials in NACo). She has taken a leading role in the organization's lobbying efforts in regard to tax exempt bonds and the charity care obligation of not-for-profit hospitals.

The NACo Board of Directors is the policy-setting body of the organization. It acts on recommendations from 12 steering committees, each of which is responsible for a broad issue area. Adopted policy forms the The American County Platform which is used in the organization's lobbying efforts in Congress and with administrative agencies. In addition, the organization has a strong research and education component which seeks to improve the efficiency and quality of service provided by the nation's counties.

"I am delighted to have this opportunity," said Supervisor Shipnuck. "America's counties are being asked to take on more responsibility as programs are shifted from federal and state levels. We need to work hard to maintain a good funding base and to develop an appropriate definition of our new role."

JEAN ARTHUR MEMORABILIA NOW AT BGSU IN OHIO

Personal mementoes that once belonged to actress Jean Arthur have been given to the Center for Archival Collections at Bowling Green State University.

Dr. Ralph Wolfe, curator of the Gish Film Theater and the Lillian and Dorothy Gish Professor of Film Studies at Bowling Green, arranged for the materials to become a part of the University's holdings.

Wolfe, who first met the actress in 1984 while visiting friends in Carmel, said the collection arrived on campus just 10 days before Arthur's death last month.

The materials include scrapbooks, newspaper clippings, reviews and publicity photographs that trace Arthur's movie career.

She appeared in such film classics as Mr. Smith Goes to Washington and You Can't Take It With You. An Oscar nominee in 1943 for her role in The More the Merrier, she appeared in her last major motion picture, Shane, in 1953. She died on June 19 at the age of 90.

Wolfe said that this fall her memorabilia will be put on display at the University's Jerome Library and a Jean Arthur film festival will be presented at the Gish Film Theater.

Fresh off the tree (or is that tee?)

THE ORGANIZERS of the "Jack Lemmon Invitational" golf tournament took the saying, "If you have lemons, make lemonade," and squeezed it for all it was worth.

Jack Lemmon bowed out of the tournament, a fundraiser for The Friends of Photography in San Francisco, to do a film with Al Pacino, so didn't make the cut. His son Chris and game show vet Monty Hall stepped in as co-hosts. Chris Lemmon and his gang of young (by AT&T standards) golfing-actor friends from down south made lemonade with a twist of light-hearted fun.

Eighty percent of the golfers entered in response to an article in Golf Digest magazine about the "Jack Lemmon Invitational." They paired off with the likes of Mark McClure (he played Jimmy Olsen in Superman and was in Back To The Future II), David Naughton (he co-starred with Pam Dawber in My Sister Sam and was the Dr. Pepper spokesman for four years), Matthew Laurance (you've seen him in Thirty Something and Beverly Hills 90210), Michael Beck (he's appeared in Warriors, Triumph of a Man Called Horse, Houston Nights and the upcoming Deadly Game on USA Cable and Die By Night on CBS) and Rick Hurst (who's credits include Steel Magnolias, Dukes of Hazard, Earth Girls Are Easy and On the Rocks). Maybe Earth Girls Are Easy didn't break any attendance records at the Golden Bough Theater in Carmel, and the actors listed above may not always get top billing like Sean Connery or Tom Smothers, but several of them have played in the new/old Crosby tournament in North Carolina at the invitation of Kathryn Crosby.

Wouldn't it be fun to have the wit of the Dr. Pepper Man, David Naughton, at the AT&T? Naughton had never been to the peninsula before and described the Pebble Beach courses as "humbling" and "cosmopolitan." He especially enjoyed The Links at Spanish Bay.

"I've never played a course that was environmentally sensitive before," he said. "All the plants are protected and you're not supposed to walk on the dunes, so you can take your ball and move it at any time. I told the guys at the pro shop I lost eight balls today and they replaced all eight. They care a lot about those sand dunes."

Naughton: "The scores at The Links at Spanish Bay are environmentally protected too. My 85 should have been a 95, but because of the sensitive nature of the course, I picked up 10 strokes today."

Are you listening AT&T Committee?

CHARLES MOORE SPEAKS

The official ground-breaking ceremony for the new Jane and Justin Dart Wing of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art at La Mirada was a thrilling and moving experience for the many museum supporters who gathered to hear award-winning architect Charles Moore say, "the bulldozers will be coming in soon." Moore, a little shy at the podium, picked up speed and eloquence as he described the new building he has designed.

"It is meant to look like it was here all along. Like some incredible, seeing, 19th century person left it here for us to enjoy. So let us step without faltering into the humble magnificence of the structure that will be built here." Moore has designed the addition to the historic Castro adobe, formerly the home of Frank Work, who later donated it to the museum. Moore's Master's thesis at Princeton University was on Monterey's adobes, because, as he has said, "They are so modest and simple, yet they still have great presence and power."

Jane Dart spoke and, "bowed low to all for their interest and enthusiasm," and sent "love thoughts" to Frank Work, who donated $100,000 in honor of the ground breaking.

The new wing will display the Dart collection of Armia Hansen paintings and etchings and the Virginia K. Klemme collection of Asian art. The completion date is scheduled for the fall of 1992.

IRONIES & INTRIGUES

Fund raising groups on the peninsula are staring at their 1991-1992 calendars these days, looking for that perfect date. Why? They're planning their major fall and winter season social events. They've even called "Coast & Country," for help, hoping I'm so organized I have my entire fall calendar on the books. Not a chance!

Conflicting dates, especially with a Hospice event, spell disaster for volunteer event planners. There has been talk about a Community Calendar, to help track dates

Remember Tickle Pink in the Highlands? Well, it's going toffee and caramel under the supervision of Charles Gruwell, design director of Studio Encanto. The 35-year-old hotel is undergoing a two-part renovation and changing its name in the process. To "Tickle Pink Inn at Carmel Highlands." The name change, according to Albert Gurries II, general manager, helps better place the geographic locale of the hotel in the minds of the visiting public. Doesn't have quite the same ring as "The Lodge at Pebble Beach" though.

Spanish Bay soon. Most recently the tournament headquarters for the "Jack Lemmon Invitational," the models are done in Pacific Rim chic and eclectic pop-art funk. Don't miss the beat-out cowboy boots on the white plush carpet and folk-art dalmatian dog in the powder room in the funk model.

Many local people were distraught when The Friends of Photography left its birthplace in Carmel and moved to San Francisco two years ago. When the decision was made to do the "Jack Lemmon Invitational," a golf/photographic fundraiser, The Friends chose the Pebble Beach courses, Weston Gallery, Pescadero Point and local photographers Morley Baer and Huntington Witherill as featured attractions. There's no place like home.

Grant very suavely plants an upper right-cross on Ingrid Bergman's classic jaw, knocking her cold. She wakes up later, dazed and dreamy eyed, more beautiful than ever. No black eye, swollen jaw or broken teeth, just a little headache.

Life doesn't imitate art where violence is concerned. The Women's Crisis Center in Salinas takes an average of 28 calls per month reporting sexual assault, acquaintance rape and dating violence from past or present incidents. 125 - 140 personal contact visits reporting domestic violence, issues an average of 23 protection orders a month and answers approximately 250 calls on the crisis line. The core of calls are from women 18 - 45.

The high numbers are alarming, but on the positive side they mean victims are asserting themselves and becoming survivors of crimes. Teenagers who learned about the Child Abuse Program in their schools now speak out and protect themselves from violence. The Child Abuse Program no longer exists; a victim of Governor Wilson's budget cuts. Linda Sanchez of the Women's Crisis Center in Salinas faults the government for ignoring the problem.

"Governor Wilson totally eliminated the $10.1 million Child Abuse Prevention Program in the schools. Our government needs to get into alignment to find the medium between prisons and protection, because until we do that we will always be dealing with the crisis." Thanks to the United Way of Salinas Valley, the Harden Foundation and Salinas Valley Foundation the Child Abuse Prevention Program is continuing, but on a limited basis.

CARMEL... AS I SEE IT

By Betty Barron

International exchange

WHAT WERE we doing at Monterey Airport at midnight on July 9? Would you believe...waiting for 15 teenagers from Paris.

We were a group of 40 or so Americans...adults (all-over-40) and children of all ages from 11-year-old Lori Root of Pacific Grove, to several teenagers of the soon-to-be-host families. All volunteers, these hosts were to meet their chosen French student and take them into their home for three weeks. Among the hosts were Ron and Debbie Blue of Carmel, Leslie Buck, the Loren Lists and Dr. and Mrs. Jan Belza of Pebble Beach, Cathy Scherzer, the Lou Haddads and the Randy Wights of Monterey, the Jim Roots of Pacific Grove, and the Berridge family...from Aromas.

Colorful homemade signs with names such as Laurent, Cedric and Carole bobbed in the crisp night air. And, as the airport limousine from San Francisco pulled to the curb, excitement grew, and signs were raised so that the French students would locate their host families. There were three Sebastiens, two Nicolases, Alex, Frederic...and girls names Isaline, Sophie, Anne, Caroline, Florence...and a teacher Catherine Orrieux.

Every student was whisked away quickly. It was then almost 2 a.m.

The next day we all started slowly, but by mid-week the first adjustments were made, and the excursions around the Peninsula well under way. The Aquarium and Fisherman's Wharf were high on the list, Big Sur and Point Lobos, a day-long trip to Santa Cruz and the boardwalk...and another longer all-day trip to San Francisco came a little later.

The high point of the first week was the potluck party at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Christopher Boal in Carmel Valley. Their spacious rural "compound," home to the four Boal teenagers, Alex and Claire, students at RLS, and Jennifer and Amanda, now college students, was the perfect setting for the party. Their pool was the focal point, the buffet table a close second. And, the tennis and basketball courts were the scene of constant action.

The day was such a success that a repeat performance at the Boal's home was held at the conclusion of the three-week visit.

Organized by Sejours Internationaux Linguistics and Culturals (SILC), the July program was preceded by a similar visit to France by a group of Peninsula students. Robert Louis Stevenson school sent Dylan Samson and Hunter Vogel. York School was represented by Shane McGillaway, Tim McKnew, Damian Miller, Cashel O'Boyle and Rachel Wahl. Salinas High sent D'Anne McGillaway, and Pacific Grove High had Carol Kennedy and Deanna Sousa among the American contingent. They returned with glowing accounts of life in France.

The Alliance Francais picnic at the Trail and Saddle Club, held on Bastille Day, July 14... followed by one day the SILC party at the Boal Home. Among the Alliance members attending were Al and Marie Therese Taylor, Micheline Geisen, the Kent Kettrels and their children, Grace and Kent William, Glori and Bill Evert, the Frank Kentworths, Lee and Daniele Vagnini, Pat Hathaway, his mother, Joelle Hathaway, the John Dowdakins.

In August the Monterey Peninsula will again be the setting for another group of French teenagers. If you wish to be involved in this wonderful experience in international living, please call me at 624-9349. An alternate number for messages is 626-1934.

BUSINESS BEAT

By David Leland

A new face in town

ALMOST TWO years to the day after Fortier's Drug Store, a Carmel landmark, closed down, a new business has opened its doors at the Ocean and Dolores location.

Travels, "sister" to the store of the same name in the Capitola Mall, and owned by Jeffery Bearss, Sandra Partridge and Linda Player, purports to be an emporium for the world traveler.

"It's one-stop shopping," says Bearss, standing next to a talking alarm clock. New Age music softly playing in the background.

In addition to an extensive selection of video documentaries on travel locales at home and abroad, Travels boasts such merchandise as guidebooks, AC adapters, blow dryers, garment bags and guidebooks.

While it was rumored that Ted and Bob Leidig, who own the store, were charging top-dollar for rent, which effectively barred low-volume stores, Bearss said he has been "very pleased" with the amount of customers coming through the doors since the July 10 opening.

Bearss adds that the concept for the store sprang from he and his partners, who worked and travelled for major firms and could never find what they needed when they were going on the road.

On the ocean blue... Herb Towle, president and broker of The Prudential Towle International Realty in the mouth of the valley, has been chosen as a host of the upcoming America's Cup yacht races, the oldest competitive sporting event in the country.

Towle said he is excited at being one of only a dozen "official hosts" of the America's Cup, which runs from next January through April.

"We're excited to be part of this competition," says Towle, referring to the race that will pit the United States (current cup holder) against nine foreign countries. "It is not only a sporting event, but it is one that is an excellent competitive experience that can help teach our children — and all of us — the value of competition and how important it is to do your best...whether you win or not."

Towle said he will introduce an educational contest in local schools for children ages 11-14, which will be related to the America's Cup. He indicated that he will also sponsor some local sailboat races.

As a host Towle will provide schedules and race information to consumers as the competition draws near.

News from Big Sur... Carl Shadwell has been named executive chef at the River Inn resort.

Previously chef at Hidden Valley Music Seminars in Carmel Valley, Shadwell has been involved in the business for more than 20 years at restaurants such as the Big Sur Lodge and Ventana.

New to you... My Favorite Things, featuring doll houses, miniatures, collectible dolls and dried floral arrangements, has opened.

Owned by Carol Ashley and Monica Najmabadi, the store is located on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth in downtown Carmel.

Such an honor... Lori Lash, owner of Carmel-based Lori L. Lash Business Services, has been named "Member of the Month" by the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Convention Bureau.

Lash, who specializes in bookkeeping, taxes and business development for small businesses, was honored for her participation as chair of the chamber's network program, a free program that allows business people to meet and exchange information and ideas.

NOTICE OF STREET PAVING WORK

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA
The Public Works Department Contractors will be paving Junipero Avenue from 3rd Avenue to Camino Del Monte, on the 10th and 11th of September 1991, and on 11th Avenue between Torres Street and Junipero Avenue on the 5th and 6th of August 1991. During the work a number of streets will be closed periodically to through traffic. Detours will be well marked. Residents impacted by the construction area may experience limited vehicle access to their homes of up to 8 hours, however, all residents will be able to get in and out of their homes on foot. They will receive individual notification of local traffic restrictions as the work progresses.

There will be some vehicles staging and parking on Guadalupe north of 3rd Avenue, so residents should be especially cautious on the 10th and 11th of September.

Drivers are advised to remain alert to detour changes and to the movement of heavy trucks during the construction period. Literary suits

ROUND AND about the literary scene—

Dateline: New York. The case had been regarded as a major test of whether people whose names are used in fictional works can sue for libel successfully.

Musician Gloria Parker's $15 million libel action against writer Oscar Hijuelos (for a racy depiction of her in his Pulitzer Prize novel) has been dismissed by federal judge Thomas Platt.

Filed last year, the suit claimed Parker's reputation had been destroyed because of the way Hijuelos portrayed her in The Mambo Kings Play Songs of Love. He cited the ribald leader of a 1950s band called "Glorious Gloria Parker and Her All-Girl Rumba Orchestra."

Parker plays the marimba. She once fronted a band with that name and still plays as Glorious Gloria Parker.

She claimed that two passages in the novel (one sexual liaison, one conversation in a bar) were false and defamatory. But Judge Platt ruled "it is difficult to believe that an average reader would consider either of these passages defamatory."

Parker's lawyer said there would be no appeal.

THE RECLUSIVE author J.D. Salinger has refused an award proffered by Brandeis University.

Brandeis spokesman Dennis Nealon said of the snub: "The assumption is that it's in keeping with his strict desire for privacy."

The 71-year-old Salinger had been chosen to receive one of nine Lillian Poses Creative Arts Awards. But the university withdrew that honor because Salinger thought announcement of the award focused unwanted public attention on him and caused "credulous strangers" to think he might appear.

Salinger's home sits behind high walls in New Hampshire. He last published a book in 1962.

"I guess people assumed he (Salinger) was going to make a public appearance," Nealon said, "but he could have received the award without showing up. We never meant to imply he was coming. Brandeis wants to honor his request that his privacy be respected. It was never our intention to invade it."

AMAJOR publishing house says it has dropped plans to bring out a crime novel it offered to buy for $925,000 — reportedly one of the biggest sums ever for a first book — because blurbs accompanying the manuscript were fake.

Simon & Schuster axed the project. The novel Just Killing Time caused a scandal when New York dailies reported that written endorsements from best-selling writers John le Carre and Joseph Wambaugh were invented.

Both authors told reporters they had never even read the book.

LOCAL POET David Charles issues a physically handsome paperback called A Cup of Expresso (sic). It comes from California Publishing in San Francisco. No price listed. He requests our comment.

These entries tend toward philosophy — life, death, art, time, love. They lack the electricity of some other homegrown works; this reads like a first book whose maker could use real exposure to the modern masters.

Some decent questions, though. Short items by David will appear in this space every now and then. This column exists, at least in part, to help younger writers whenever possible.

THE GROUP called Poets & Writers Inc. maintains a toll-free literary hotline for Californians. The point: create a "broad sense of community" among North American makers of fiction and poetry.

Files contain the names and addresses and (in some cases) phone numbers of more than 6,700 wordpersons. Call 1-800-666-2268 between 8 a.m. and noon (our time).

SUMMER FLINGS ARE, BY THEIR NATURE, SHORT & SWEET. But, if the one abandoned with summer's end is a pet, summer romance can seem sour indeed. An untold number of cats & dogs adopted during a family's stay at a summer home, beach or campground find themselves abandoned when the family ends its vacation. The worst mistake anyone with an unwanted pet can make is to leave the animal to fend for itself. Pets have starved in locked, empty apartments waiting for owners. They have been left to wander aimlessly in search of food & water. If you need to find a home for your pet, you should insure that the prospective owners really want the pet and are ready to take permanent responsibility. If you can't find a home on your own, bring your pet to the SPCA where the staff screens all potential adopters. Even though the shelter is overburdened with unwanted animals, it is preferable to abandonment!

The SPCA of Monterey County, The Carmel Pine Cone and the Pacific Grove Monarch, as well as the business people represented on this page, present this animal feature. Visit the SPCA's animal shelter Monday through Friday, 11a.m. to 5p.m., or weekends 11a.m. to 4p.m.

PLEASE NOTE: Animals pictured are subject to prior adoption or return to owner/companion. Adoptions are to qualified homes only. If these animals have been adopted, there are other adorable animals available...come on out! AND, PLEASE, PREVENT A LITTER! DON'T ALLOW YOUR ANIMAL TO BREED!

CARMEL YOUTH BASEBALL

By Mary Parsons

Carmel All-Stars take three of five

CARMEL'S PONY All-Stars won three out of five games in last week's tournament at Jacks Park in Monterey, finishing third overall. In the opener on July 25, Robby Koontz (win) and Joey Bernhard (save) led Carmel to a 3-2 win over Monterey #2. Koontz powered a tremendous home run over the left field fence into Franklin Street. Unfortunately for Carmel's tournament hopes, two key players were injured in that game—Justin Garza broke his thumb sliding into third, and Jeff Pritchard separated a shoulder with a divine centerfield catch. With Garza and Pritchard on the DL, the team lost 6-3 to Pacific Grove on July 26.

On July 27 the Pony All-Stars beat both Watsonville and Monterey #1, during a grueling day which didn't end till nearly 1 a.m. Casey Christensen was the winning pitcher in relief of Joey Bernhard and Robby Koontz in the 10-9 win over Watsonville; Carmel rallied for four runs in the bottom of the 7th. In the second game, eliminating the top Monterey team from the tournament took an extra (8th) inning. Justin Garza (win) pitched 7 innings despite his broken thumb; Joey Bernhard threw a scoreless 8th to hold the score at 8-6. The tremendously difficult deciding game was a see-saw struggle with the lead changing hands several times.

The Carmel team's second loss came against Salinas on July 28, when its 7th inning rally fell short. RBI hits by Chris Leonoff and Michael Palshaw had closed a previous 7-3 gap to 7-5, when Lance Kitisawa came to the plate with two outs and the bases loaded. An earlier Kitisawa at-bat had resulted in Carmel's only runs with a bases-loaded double to the fence. The Salinas first baseman, determined not to let the feat be repeated, leaped to spear Lance's line-drive bid and snagged it in the tip of his glove—a heartbreaking end to Carmel's successful weekend. Palshaw pitched a complete game, striking out 11 and allowing only three earned runs.

The Mustang sectional tournament at Larson Field was won by Seaside, who persevered through the loser's bracket to win doubleheaders both Saturday and Sunday. Carmel was eliminated last week with an 11-3 loss to Seaside. In that game, Chris Cook singled and scored on a two-run homer ripped by Shawn Cronin; Chris Foudy doubled and Hank Stoffers singled and stole home.

In the Bronco sectional tournament at Seaside, Carmel picked up a 2-1 win over Capitola on July 23. Joseph Silverie hit 1/1; Davin Johnson and Richard Vega doubled. Vega threw out two runners at second and Johnson was credited with great fielding. Dylan Pappas was the winning pitcher; Ryan Bailey had the save with 5 Ks in the last two innings.

Carmel's Bronco All-Stars fell to Marina in an 8-1 game July 26. Richard Vega hit 3/3 and doubled; Davin Johnson and Russell Chaplan gave strong defensive performances. Brian Christensen turned 12 outs at first base; rightfielder Jack Camp made a super throw for an out at first.

That's it for this year, folks! Thanks to all who contributed information to make this column possible.

SEASIDE WAS overall winner of the Mustang Sectional Tournament at Larson Field.

THIS & THAT

By Florence Mason

The Friends did it!

IF, THROUGH the years, you enjoyed reading Father Lawrence Farrell's words of wisdom in this paper, you will be delighted to know that you can now obtain a booklet bringing all of those words together. Others had talked about doing this; the Friends of Harrison Memorial Library, under the leadership of vice-president Libby Durein, have done it. The 44-page booklet also includes a biography of the popular Catholic priest, and his picture.

Libby pointed out that these words — first given as invocations for the Carmel Rotary Club and on other special occasions — are not Catholic doctrine. "Father Farrell was a true ecumenical leader," she explains. "In his messages he observed Easter and Passover, Hanukkah and Christmas as well as patriotic occasions and Carmel's birthday." The booklet can be ordered at the library's book sale this month (read on) and then at literary teas and other locations to be announced. You can call the library for specifics.

Libby credits former Friends board member and local writer Sharon Lawrence for editing and printing the material. Herald Printers donated the typesetting and paper (through the auspices of Dick Rotter) and Pine Cone publisher Bill Brown made the archives available. The biography of Father Farrell was written by Rotarian Kenneth Yost.

Libby Durein compiled the "wisdom," pouring through every issue of the Pine Cone since publication of Father Farrell's words began in January, 1980. "He was very much a product of the Peninsula," Libby told me. "In his later years he filled in for vacationing priests in addition to serving as a counsellor at Soledad prison and in other prison settings. He was 'citizen of the year' in 1981 and died in 1983 at the age of 76." In this booklet Father Farrell's words are grouped into seasonal sections, a year's worth of practical, inspirational, often humorous thoughts.

THE LIVELY Friends of the Harrison Memorial Library are also busy getting ready for their annual book sale.
Put down these dates: Saturday, August 10 and Sunday, August 11 in Carpenter Hall, Sunset Center. The group had so many books stored up earlier this summer that they held a one-time-only sale in June. But the August sale is the big one, and it was never more important. Sale coordinator Lucette Kenan, treasurer of the Friends of HML, pointed out that the loss of county funds necessitates a major cut in the purchase of books and magazines. "The city supports the building and staff, but we have depended on the county for the purchase of new books and magazines," she said. "We'll have just as many books for this August sale as we have always had.
It should be another great Carmel event!"

WE LOVE "DOING" BACH

SUDDENLY IT is dark in the Mission basilica. Suddenly, quiet. Then the candles at the altar flicker on. Into the silence a silent procession comes. Twenty-five whiterobed figures, some with huge, colorful banners, others
— one between each banner — carrying lighted tapers.

THIS & THAT

It is Wednesday night in Bach week and this is the Founders' Memorial Concert.

Who are the people in this procession? Unsung volunteers who consider it a privilege to be here. After the concert — all Mozart this year — they line up on either side of the walk leading to the front gate. Some departing members of the audience finger the beautiful banners, thank those in the procession for their contribution to a special evening.

It is time you met these special Bach Festival volunteers. Leading the group in, poised and charming, are three young ladies. The youngest and smallest is Elizabeth Vaughan, her blond hair circled by a halo. She carries a bouquet of flowers. Behind Elizabeth come Emily Factor and Danielle Latta. These two walk in easy harmony; they have been doing this each year for six years. For most of that time they were similar in size as well as in their pretty, brown-haired looks, but this past year Emily has out-grown her friend. A few minutes ago, in the gathering room, they had been chasing each other around and eating freely of the snacks provided; now, they quietly and solemnly (but still, lightly) carry candles at the head of the long procession.

The first banner carrier is Kay House. She has done this every year for 10 years, fitting it in as she travels back and forth to Texas to look after her ailing father. Hiking helps to keep her in shape. Kay studied philosophy at U.C. Santa Cruz and German at MIIS, but so far her necessary travels have kept her from putting her studies to good use.

Chris Schneider comes right behind Kay, the first (shortest) of the adult candle-bearers. If you think she looks familiar, it may be because this is also her 10th year in the procession. Or you may have seen her in the Underworld shop on San Carlos Street. She has owned the lingerie shop since 1977 and lives nearby. Chris is particularly proud of the Quota Club, to which she belongs. It is that group that supplied the Sunset Center auditorium with devices for the hard-of-hearing so they can fully enjoy the Bach concerts there — and all the other cultural offerings.

Sprightly John Farr, an eight-year veteran of the procession, is next. He has lived in this area for 40 years and is a somewhat retired music teacher. He also fiddles, as in "fiddles around with everything — like cars and clocks."

Star Reiersen is a third-year participant who in her "other" life is a computer consultant. After teaching at MPC, Star opened her own training firm and computer teaching school.

Other than these three Wednesday nights during the Bach Festival, Douglas Stevens can usually be found at the Pasta Palate on San Carlos. He was in the hotel business for years but "got tired of the corporate world" and wanted the challenge of his own business. He gets great satisfaction from feeding about 2500 people a day by providing fresh pasta to some 60 restaurants on the Peninsula. That's 500 to 700 lbs. each day!

Betty Plank is one of two people in the procession who have been featured as "splendid seniors" in this column, so I will merely remind you that she is the former executive director of the Carmel Foundation, now active in many good causes. The other splendid senior is Les Fulham — Les the Barber of Carmel — noted for his philosophical gems as well as for his talents as a barber and photographer.

Lee and Kathie Riordan are one of several couples gracing the procession. They live in the valley. Lee has recently retired as city manager of Monterey; it's an active retirement as he is now a governmental consultant, and a member of the Monterey County Cultural Council. Kathie is an independent provider of spiritual direction, working mostly with women.

Another couple heading down the long aisle of the basilica: Beverly and Chester Gadaire. It's their first year. Both are hiking leaders in the Sierra Club and Chet also leads bike trips. They enjoy chamber music, too.

Paul Eastman describes himself as "a born-again vampire," and his wife, Lynn, as "a born-again gardener," he explains: "I'm an active worker for the Carmel Red Cross, working especially with the blood drives." He is in his eighth year with the Memorial Concert and Lynn is in her seventh. Both are active at All Saints' church — he in the choir, she on the vestry.

Sam and Virginia Leach round out our group of couples. Sam is a now self-employed physicist, doing research in the energy field. He says Virginia is the brains in the family. Virginia speaks with obvious pleasure of having been a professional choral singer. And especially about this: she sang in the Back Festival chorus 33 years ago!

Ann Brown is one of only two women carrying one of the big, sometimes awkward banners. She also ushers at other Festival concerts. With a Ph.D. in art history, she is now a fine arts consultant, working with one of Carmel's galleries.

Art Pasquini is just getting used to the art of carrying a banner and making certain that it doesn't hit the dangling microphone that was added to the facility the first week of the festival. Art is chief financial officer for a local computer manufacturing company. He hikes, fences, and in his spare time he is remodeling his own kitchen.

Protecting their flickering candles out in the courtyard are the rest of our intrepid crew.

Edith Lassen has been "doing" Bach for seven years. Homemaking and travel are other interests, also gardening ("you could put that three times").

Shirley Temple brushes off comments about her familiar name. She and her husband, an engineer, retired to this area three years ago and are "taking advantage of all the wonderful things in this area." She is a homemaker with four children, and she is active in the Carmel Presbyterian church.

Nancy Welch, a freshman in this endeavor, has a degree in dramatic literature from U. C. Berkeley and, always a film buff, loves teaching literature and 20th century film-making at MPC and in adult programs. She is one of those gems who especially likes working with seniors in convalescent or residential care facilities. Nancy is also a pianist.

Sharon Carey started in the procession six years ago, following — literally in the footsteps of her daughter, Danielle Latta, one of the charming "flower girls." She is a physician's assistant in Monterey who heads for her home in Big Sur when the workday is over.

Susan Agorastos is a legal secretary with many "outside" interests: she is a buyer for the Monterey Museum of Art gift shop and is on the board of the Bach Festival Associates.

This smooth-flowing procession exits briskly to a Mozart march. Shepherding us out is Margaret Dodendorf who, after only one year in the procession is now our capable major domo. Art, travel and bridge also claim some of her time.

That's the Memorial Concert procession: similarly clad, individually special local lovers of music and tradition.

They'll be back next year.

Community Church offers Sunday School

The Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula is presenting a Sunday school program each Sunday throughout the entire summer.

"Multiculturalism and the Church" is currently being studied, focusing on "The Spiritual Wisdom and Culture of the Native American Indians" including a study of the similarities between the Native American Indian's traditions and the Christian's responsibilities to take care of God's planet Earth and creations.

The Sunday School room has been transformed into a forest to create a time when only the Indians lived in America, and to discuss why ecology and pollution is important to Christians.

"Clown Ministry" is the subject of study through Sept. 8, using clowning, mime, and music as a way to minister God's word to all ages in the church and in the community.

Sunday school registration is open all year for ages 4 to junior high school. A Sunday school program is taught in the nursery during worship services and we have youth group programs. All are invited to visit the Sunday school and experience with your children a Christian family community. For further information call Connie O'Dea, Christian educator at the church 624-8595.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

"Throughout the nation, the gap between job requirements and job skills is growing," says a report of the Committee for Economic Development. The private research group, consisting of corporate executives and professors, cited a need to retain skilled older workers while giving young people the education and training they need to meet workplace needs. Among the Committee's recommendations: Stop penalizing Social Security recipients for working to earn additional income, and overhaul longtime retirement policies. The report criticized "rigid" company policies that offer no choices other than fulltime work or full retirement. Instead, it suggests, companies should give older workers the option of reduced hours at attractive pay, and flexible scheduling.

Conrad Watson retired in 1969 as chief machinist at a factory in Lansdale, Pennsylvania, after 42 years on the job. Then he turned his full attention to restoring antique cars. In two decades he has completely refurbished 12 antique autos to pristine condition. This year he won the highest award of the Antique Car Club of America for his restoration of a 1925 Model T Ford roadster.

Point Lobos celebrated in poetic, pictorial tribute

"LOBOS," pictorial and poetic tribute to Point Lobos, will open Saturday, Aug. 3 at the Cherry Foundation in Carmel. Addressing the relationship between the individual artistic imagination and Point Lobos, the exhibit juxtaposes five photographs with oil paintings and poetry of Jeanne D'Orge and verse of Robinson Jeffers.

Exhibiting photographers include William Giles, Edna Bullock and Kira Corser and Maggie Dew.

Kira Corser is an award-winning Carmel Highlands photographer known primarily for her traveling exhibitions and books on social issues.

A student of John Charles in the 35 mm and 120 format cameras, Maggie Dew has had her work published extensively in Missouri and California magazines.

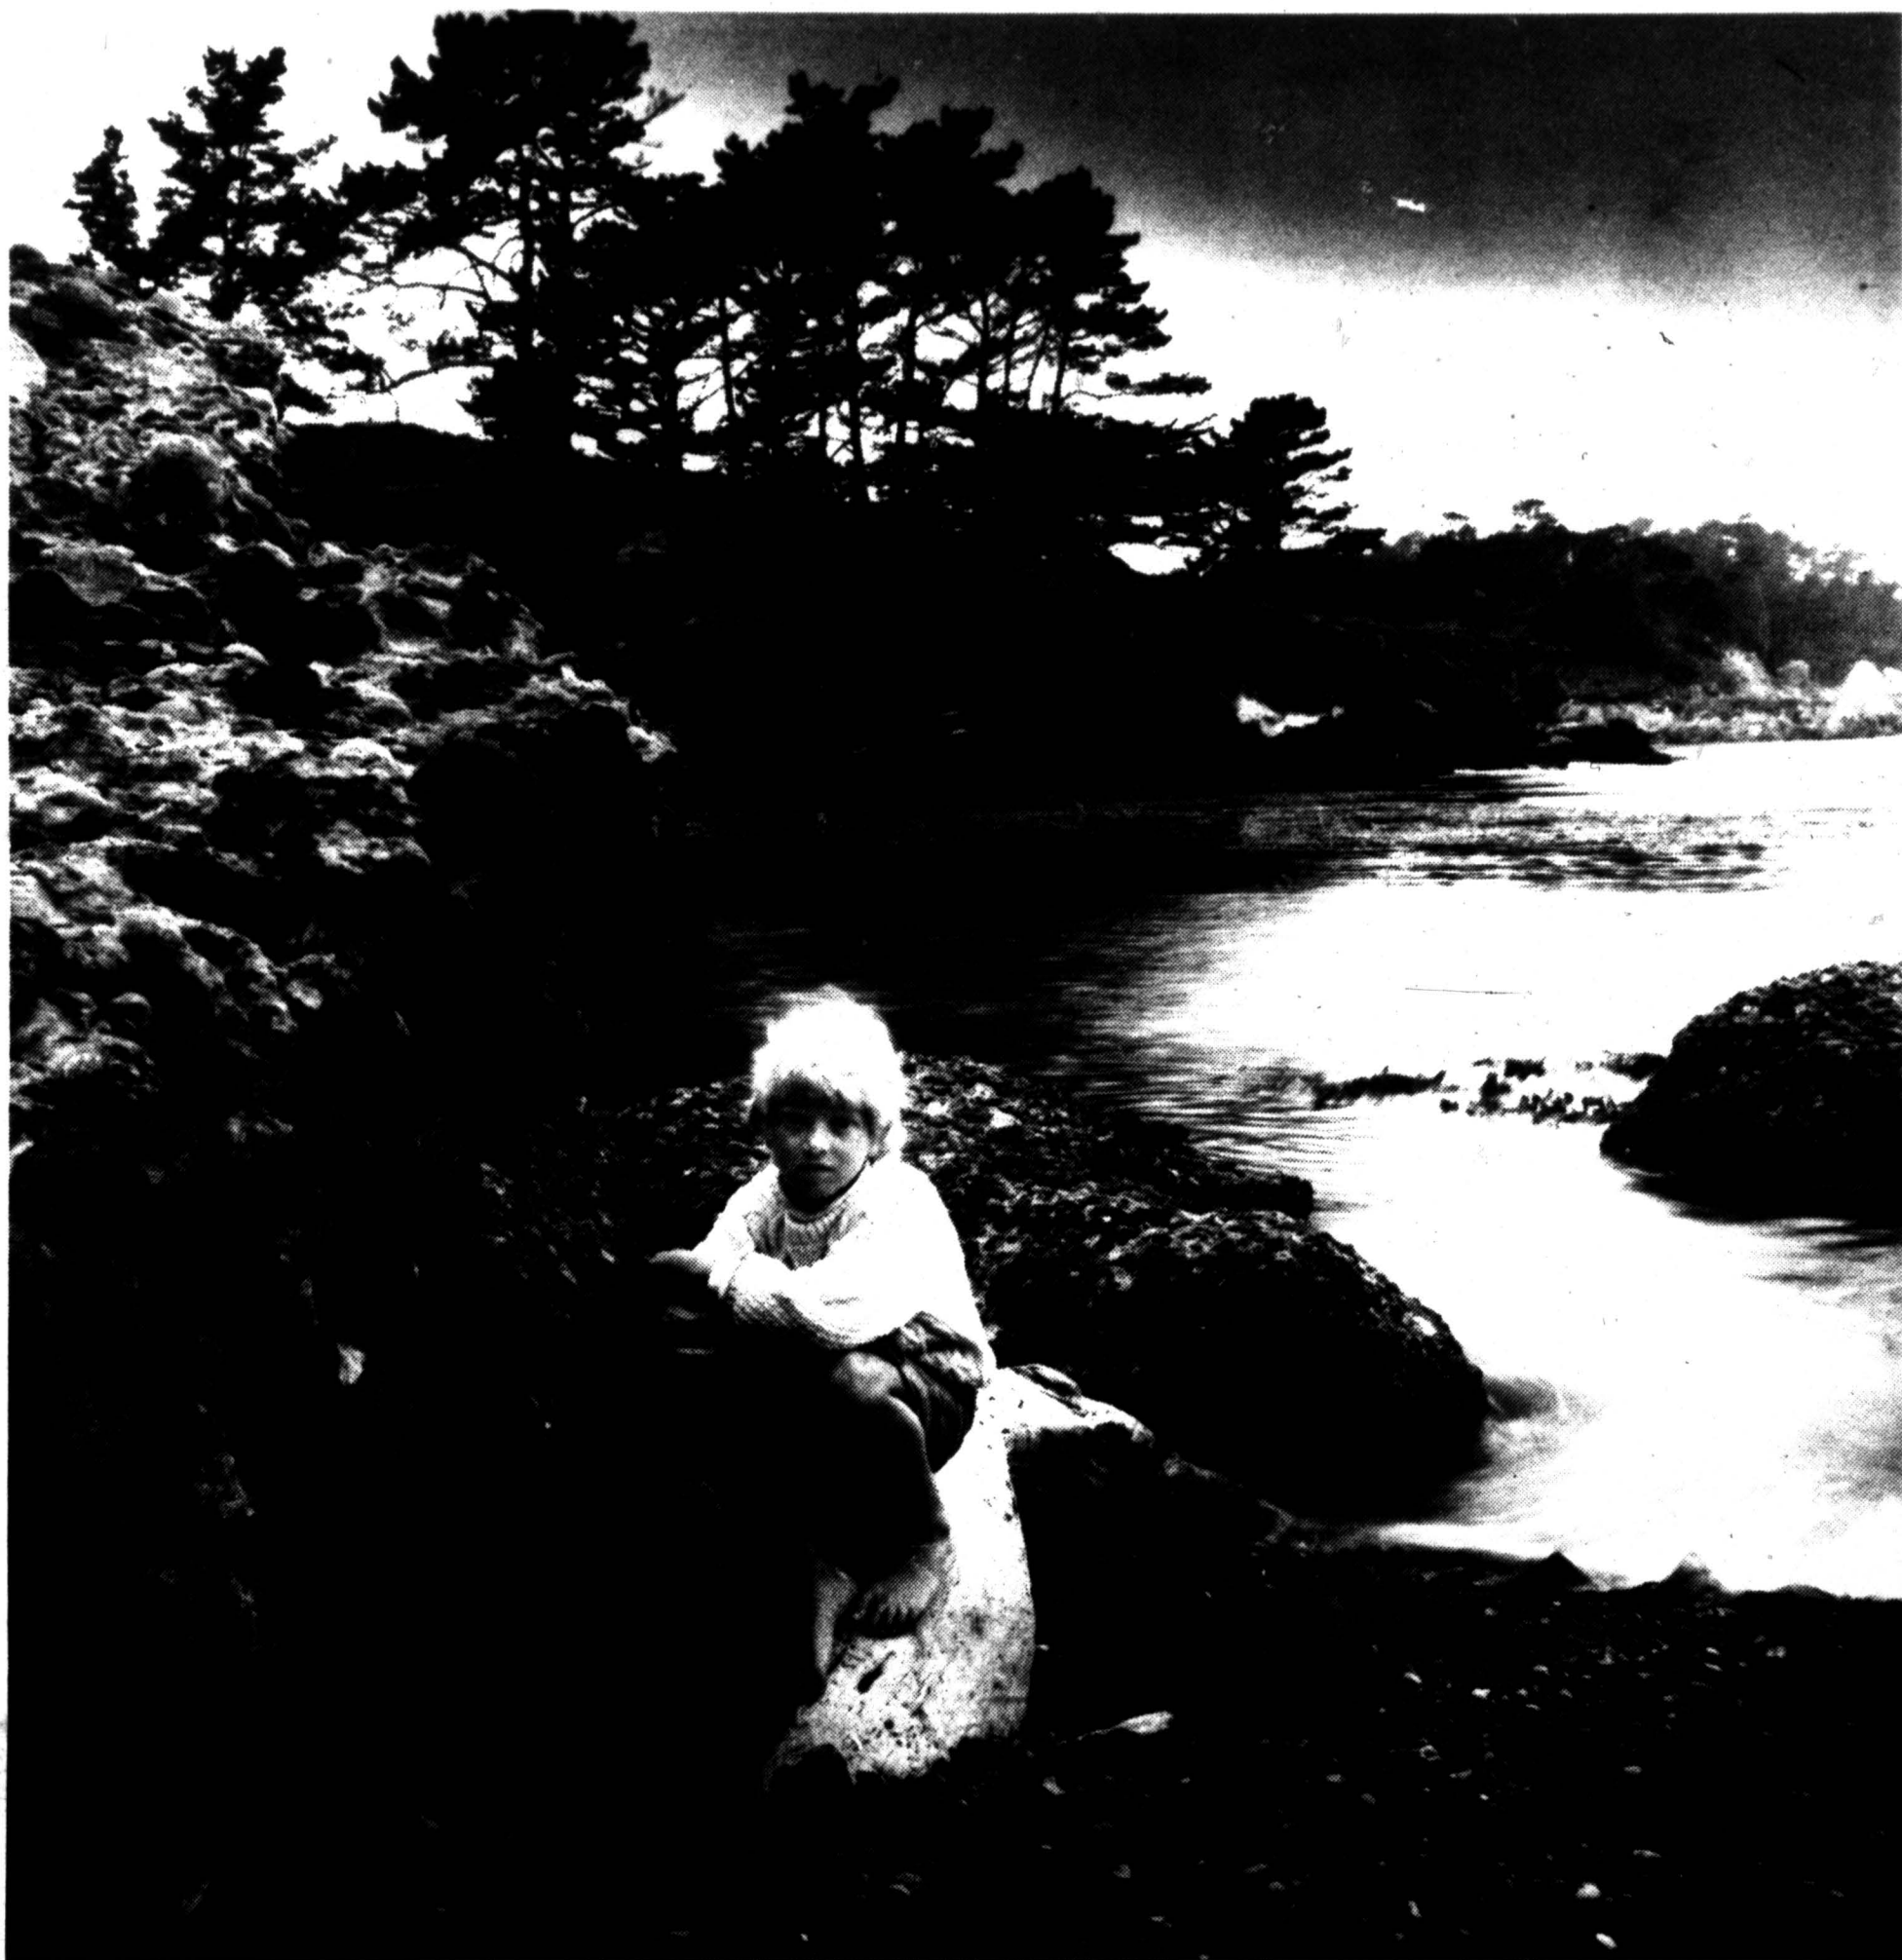

Edna Bullock's photographs have been exhibited in galleries across the U.S. as well as Europe, with exhibitions on the nude sponsored by the Stills Gallery in Edinburgh, the Scotland, and a five-woman show at the Museum of Photography in Antwerp, Belgium.

Founder and presiding spirit of the Cherry Foundation, Jeanne D'Orge has exhibited at the DeYoung Museum in San Francisco, the Santa Barbara Museum of Art and the Park Avenue Gallery, New York City.

Additionally, on Wednesday, Aug. 21, the Cherry Foundation will present a tribute to Point Lobos with a slide show, lecture and readings by Roz Goodrich Zanides and Don Marsh from the poetry of Jeffers and D'Orge. The program, which is free and open to the public, begins at 7:30 p.m. at the Cherry Foundation, Fourth and Guadalupe, Carmel.

Carmel Valley to host annual fiesta

THERE'S AN awful lot of coffee in Brazil, says the old song. And there's an awful lot to celebrate in Carmel Valley.

The second annual Carmel Valley Fiesta will be held Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 3-4. Marking the locality's rich heritage — two parades, near-continuous music, some 60 food and arts/crafts booths, 10-K run and an old-fashioned street dance.

Pat Duval, the singing sheriff, will be grand marshal for the kick-off parade through Carmel Valley Village at 11 a.m. Saturday. The new Parade of Clowns will start at noon Sunday with three $100 prizes to be awarded ("best clowns") in the 3-9, 10-16 and 16-80 age brackets.

The celebration's midway will be Carmel Valley Community Park. Free admission is promised; festivities will continue from 9 a.m. till 5 p.m. both days; event spokespersons say "plenty of free parking will be available in the Village."

General Chairman Gene Erner notes that proceeds from the 102nd anniversary celebration—dating from when the Valley's federal post office was founded—will be used in local causes.

The street dance will be held on Del Fino Place, in the Village business area, from 7 p.m. to midnight. Music will be provided by Strictly Country and the Sliders. Admission: $5 per person. Barbecue will be available, served by Cachagua Volunteer Fire Department.

More than 100 prizes will be given away via drawings. Goodies include a week's stay in a Kauai condo complete with air fare to Hawaii for two.

The 10-K run will start from Del Fino Place at 9 a.m. Sunday, and end there too. Awards will be presented right after the race.

For details about parade participation, call 659-2427. General sponsor of the whole big party: Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club.

CARMEL BACH FESTIVAL REVIEW

Saturday recital stars Jeffrey Swann

ONE OF THE best music values on the Monterey Peninsula is the Carmel Bach Festival recital series. It offers the audience, for a relatively reasonable price, a range of musical diversity of a high quality. One hears permutations and combinations of instruments in music off the generally beaten path, played by highly skilled professionals.

For the last several years the Saturday recital has been a pianist's showcase and this time around it was Jeffrey Swann who was featured in a very generously proportioned, interestingly programmed concert.

His opening choice, Bach's "Tocatta in D Major" BWV 912, is thought to be an early work, possibly dating from the time the composer was in his early twenties and if you can imagine Bach bubbling, that was how it sounded. Swann was a remarkably apt interpreter, bringing both brilliance and charm to the music. His playing was completely pianistic without false Baroque piety or, at the other extreme, Lisztian romanticism.

He captured the abstract quality of the slow sections, playing thoughtfully and cleanly, using the pedal lightly and sparingly. There were refined tonal differentiations and dynamic values. The concluding fugue, an astounding gigue with a hunting horn motif, projected unexpected Bachian levity and proficient passage work as Swann brought it to a close.

As an unusual contrast, this very somber and serious Mozart "Fantasy and Sonata in C Minor" K. 475, K. 457, was offered next. The playing here was solemn and searching, sensitive and subtle and full of gravity.

One soon realized that this artist knew exactly what he wanted to express. He brought his tempered, balanced technique and musical intelligence to bear with superior results. The adagios were emotive within classical proportions. Mozart's ariosos were traversed with fine control, full of fluidity, precision and carefully honed dynamics. The allegros were all in a somber mood and were more urgent and dramatically forceful. They were drawn with sweeping outlines which were given their full weight and value.

Turning to the seldom heard Schubert "Sonata in C Minor" (opus posthumous), Swann once again revealed himself as a pianist worthy of respect and admiration. The powerfully dramatic opening captured one's attention and it was held fully and closely thereafter. The artist was flexible and aware, bringing out the rapid mood swings and altered temperaments of the music.

In response to the enthusiastic applause of a large audience, Swann played the Chopin "Waltz in A flat Major" op. 42 in a sparkling, fleet-fingered tempo. The recital will be repeated on Aug. 3rd and it is certainly well worth making an effort to attend.

THEATER REVIEW

By Joe Guzaitis

When you're up to your neck in hot water, make like a kettle and sing...

THE MPC DRAMA department has taken over the original GroveMont Theater (on Hoffman) to mount some special productions this summer. The first of these is And a Nightingale Sang... a play about a British family in Newcastle during the Blitz.

The characters are an interesting lot. There's Dad who plays the piano and becomes a Communist in response to the conditions in the world; "Mam," his wife, is a deeply religious Roman Catholic; her daughters Helen, who has a slight limp and a heart of gold, and Joyce, younger, selfish, dependent on her mother. Then there's Andie, the eccentric grandfather who brings home an assortment of pets from time to time; he also moves out to become a companion to a woman of means, only to return when he finds she wants him for a houseboy.

Into this cozy household comes World War II. Newcastle was not among the worst cities hit during the war but nearly 400 died during air raids in 1940 and '41. (The program includes a 4-page insert that gives an excellent historical background for the play — a very nice touch.) In conjunction with war comes — soldiers — especially to the homes of young women. Eric falls in love with Joyce; Norman falls in love with Helen. Eric is demanding; Norman is already married; as if there weren't enough trouble with the war.

The sweep of emotions both intra- and extra- household keep us interested in this family. There is Mam's religious fervor as it confronts her daughter's lives; there are scenes in the air raid shelter, wondering how they'll survive; Andie's attempts at levity in the face of gloom; adversity is borne and the British spirit is strong.

The star of the production is Suzanne Crain playing Helen Stott. She uses Helen's slight infirmity to give the character sensitivity and perception that helps us, the audience, navigate the course of the play. Ms. Crain uses her acting tools superbly. Her eyes, brows, mouth, body language (whether as narrator or actor) are all focused on each event and give it clarity.

Mary Looman's "Mam" is a dynamo of decency, honor and principle. As the less-than-perfect world continues to roll over her, she lashes back with oaths and imprecations. Her daughters' breaches of faith hurt her and yet she loves them. What is a mother to do?

George, the father, is played by Alan Smith, a veteran actor who plays this dotty daddy with a mixture of visionary zeal and absent-minded dithering. The scene in which he tries to convert Norman to Communism is quite funny. The other roles were nicely done also.

There are no weak performers in the cast.

Nick Zanides directs the play in just the right tempo for us to feel the frenzy of this family and yet not suffer from it. The complex set is used effectively and effective use of lighting keeps us in the right place. Zanides also snatches one of the juicier roles (Andie, the Grandfather) for himself. He plays the role of the eccentric relation as part wonderment (with his animals) and part preoccupation (with taking up precious space in the household.) He also has an amusing way of launching an idea that he has been brooding on.

The Scenic Designer is Phillip Pratt, also an accomplished local performer. R.J. Allan did the Set Decor. It's as cozy a parlor as you'll ever see at tea time. Costumes are by Gloria C. Mattos Hughes and look very comfortable in their period. However, I wasn't aware that British soldiers wore spats in WW2. Shelley Worthington kept the lights in the right places at the right times.

And the Nightingale Sang... plays through Aug. 17 at the original GroveMont Theater, Lighthouse and Hoffman, New Monterey. Allow time to find parking as the lot across the street has now been totally chained off at night.

THEATER REVIEW

By James P. Kinney

The Ashland Shakespeare experience

IT LIES in a graceful bowl of pine just north of the Oregon-California border, in the foothills of the Siskiyou Mountains and at the south end of the Rogue River Valley.

For much of the year, stretching back to 1935, Ashland, Oregon is the most popular and prestigious center of Shakespearean theater in the Western Hemisphere. In the stately outdoor Elizabethan and the state-of-the-art Bowmer next door, the tales of blood and treachery, intrigue and history, love and lechery that first came to life in the mind and heart of William Shakespeare 400 years ago burst forth here in an explosion of pageant, color and multi-faceted talent that attracts tens of thousands of serious theater-goers each year.

Entering Ashland, you first notice the large red, gold and green banners fluttering from many of the town's downtown lamp posts. Book store windows display printed copies of the Bard's plays. Hotels with names like The Stratford and The Marc Antony and a small antique store on a side street calling itself As You Like It ring the theater area.

In a balanced mix of Shakespearean and contemporary plays, the 1991 season offers The Taming of the Shrew, Henry VI, (Part 1) The Merchant of Venice, and Julius Caesar, then Our Town, Major Barbara, and Other People's Money. To fill out this season's dramatic offerings, Woman in Mind, Some Americans Abroad, and Two Rooms are playing at the tiny Black Swan just across the street.

An O.S.F. evening regularly starts in the comfortable area between the Elizabethan and the Bowmer known affectionately as "The Bricks." People sit on the low, red walls or on the grass enjoying the Green Show, a spirited recital featuring vocal and instrumental music, comedy skits, and bawdy repartee by a talented troupe of young performers dressed in period costumes. A lovely lass, her blonde hair wreathed with wild blossoms, sings a romantic ballad in a pure soprano, then takes up a recorder to accompany the next number. A tall, gaunt youngster berates the object of his affection for her cold heart one moment, then plays a drum the next.

A palpable air of excitement pulses through the crowd as curtain time approaches. In the 1,200-seat Elizabethan (completed in 1959), the second part of the Green Show is in progress. An actor leans out from the magnificent facade's topmost window and runs up a green flag to announce the start of the evening's play.

In Merchant (Bowmer), set in the present, a benevolent Italian Capo, Antonio, borrows 3,000 ducats from a despised Jewish moneylender so that his charming, spendthrift friend, Bassanio, can properly woo the beautiful (and wealthy) Portia.

Antonio's merchant ships founder in unexpected storms and the bitter Shylock insists on his pound of flesh. Richard Elmore is brilliant as the hardnosed but thoroughly human 20th century Shylock. Liisa Ivary is a multi-faceted Portia. Directed by Libby Appel, the production is a masterful, technically brilliant story of timeless greed, romance and friendship.

Henry VI (Elizabethan) is an overly long, often confusing history play about the decent, well-intentioned prince who tried unsuccessfully to fill the shoes of the sainted warrior King Henry V. Henry VI's weak reign leads to numerous intrigues, disputes and internecine struggles between the Houses of York and Lancaster that eventually became the War of the Roses.

Furtive meetings, hangings, murders by suffocation, a beheading and multiple sword fights sweep across the

Letters Home

Letters Home, a play about the life of troubled genius Sylvia Plath, continues its run at the Cherry Foundation in Carmel.

The MPC Players' production can be seen at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Aug. 2-3.

Marlie Avant portrays Sylvia and Ann Mattingly plays Plath's mother, Aurelia, in this play adapted from letters the poet wrote to her family from 1950 until her suicide 13 years later. Aspects of her life are revealed as her mother, Aurelia Schober Plath, selects moments from Sylvia's 700 letters to share with her audience. In this two-act play directed by Conrad Selvig, the audience hears and sees Sylvia as she appears in her mother's reminiscences, reliving happy early days and her tragic end.

The Cherry Foundation is at Fourth and Guadalupe in Carmel-by-the-Sea. For reservations, call 649-9478.

The C.P. Taylor play, written in 1977, presents one English family's day-to-day perceptions of World War II. The play begins on Sept. 3, 1939, the day on which France and England declared war on Germany, and continues through the war's end in May 1945.

Nick Zanides directs the cast which includes Suzanne Crain, Ronald Genauer, Michael Kelly, Maria Lojkovic, Mary Loomam and Alan Smith.

Tickets are $8 general, $6 for students, senior citizens and military personnel. For reservations, call 649-6421,

Guys and Dolls

Based on Damon Runyon's short story, "The Idyll of Miss Sara Brown," Guys and Dolls tells the musical tale of hard-shelled but soft centered Times Square riffraff being saved by Miss Sara Brown of the Save-a-Soul Mission. However, Miss Sara never expected to have her heart stolen away by Sky Masterson, one of the souls she attempts to save.

Guys and Dolls continues at The Wharf Theater. Gina Welch Hagen directs the musical, which plays through Sept. 8.

Big Town sounds

CANNERY ROW could be called Manhattan West for the next several days. The jazz performers booked into local venues have Big Town written all over themselves. Figuratively, you understand.

Lionel Hampton, David Benoit, Billy Cobham, Larry Coryell, Brian Bromberg — all will share sharp skills with listeners between now and the next time this column appears. Let's take a chronological look at these riches.

On Sunday night (8/4), crisp and thoughtful keyboardist Benoit plays two shows at Doc Ricketts' Lab — eight o'clock (non-smoking) and 10:30. Ducats cost $25 apiece. Contact the Lab itself (649-4241) or Ticketmaster. Owners Kelly and Rosemary Leonard said months ago that they'd build an excellent Summer Jazz Series and that's exactly what they have done.

The Boiler Room will heat up on Tuesday night (8/5) with fine drummer Cobham, the electric bass of Bromberg, special guest artistry from Coryell on guitar. Tickets: $13.50 advance and $15 at the door. Call 373-1449. This space seats 350 and has a good-sized stage.

It's guaranteed that the boiling point will be surpassed on Tuesday night (8/6). That's when Boiler Room bookers Frank and Anthony Lane present historic jazz figure Lionel Hampton and his 20-member band (including two female vocalists).

Tickets cost $25 apiece with $5 from each sale going to Youth Music Monterey. Info and reservations: 373-1449. Experienced musicians and music promoters, the Lane Brothers already have figured out that peninsula residents tend toward greater response when some benefit to the community results.

Frank says he has been working with the Monterey mayor's office. At three o'clock that afternoon, he adds, Mayor Dan Albert will greet Lionel Hampton in some official manner. The ceremony will feature tunes by young jazz players from Youth Music Monterey.

Hamp's known for his stage presence and love of audiences. He started as a drummer and then introduced vibes as a major jazz instrument. When the Benny Goodman Quartet broke through racial barriers in 1936 and after, the black musicians involved were pianist Teddy Wilson and, yes, Lionel Hampton.

How significant? Critic Grover Sales writes: "Goodman's step emboldened other white leaders like Charlie Barnet to push integration further by hiring blacks to sit in otherwise all-white brass and reed sections. . . Gene Krupa hired Roy Eldridge and even featured the black trumpeter in public vocal duets with comely white Anita O'Day, an unheard-of violation of the ancestral taboo."

The Lionel Hampton Orchestra always has meant big and swinging fun. When I was an Oakland schoolboy, his crew concertized at the old Oaks Ballpark. Hamp eventually had thousands of us (kids and adults alike) marching around the infield as the band waited for nearly an hour on Flying Home.

It's said Hamp will do darned near anything to crank up a crowd. Once, at an old-timey Battle of the Bands when the audience wouldn't come awake to his satisfaction, he had his drummer jump into the nearby swimming pool.

They probably shan't be jumping into Monterey Bay on Tuesday evening. But the Hampton brand of joy will prevail anyway.

THE FINAL free summer concert offered by Seaside Community Services happens at one o'clock Saturday afternoon (8/3) in Laguna Grande Park. It's a blues show — the Strange Brew aggregation followed by that knockout Chris Cain Band.

Monterey Plaza Hotel offers flutist Kenny Stahl and friends at noon Sunday (8/4). This Jazz on the Bay Series continues all the way through September.

At two o'clock Sunday afternoon (8/4), vocalist Bill Allison and friends — members of Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra — will concertize at Forest Theater. Including works by Monk, Mingus and Coltrane for voice, flugelhorn, rhythm section. "Also," says Bill, "the music of Eddie Jefferson with vocal improvisation and stories."

Critic Leonard Feather calls them "the most brilliant new jazz group of the new decade." Those Harper Brothers will be spotlighted on Monday night (8/5) at Kuumbwa Center of Santa Cruz. It's $13 per; Ticketmaster; eight o'clock kick.

Upcoming Kuumbwa stars: Clark Terry (8/12), Lester Bowie's Brass Fantasy (8/19), Yellowjackets (8/23), Mike Stern and Bob Berg Band (9/9), guitarist Bireli Lagrene's unit (9/16).

IF YOU don't mind driving a bit, Koncepts Cultural Gallery in Oakland announces an excellent series of jazz duets. Made possible by various grants:

Vibist Bobby Hutcherson and pianist Kenny Barron (8/9-10), saxist Arthur Blythe with pianist Horace Tapscott (8/16-17), pianist Jaki Byard and saxist Ricky Ford (9/6-7), saxist David Murray and pianist Dave Burrell (9/13-14).

SIGHT BITES: Usual partner Weber Drummond's vacationing in Rio. So Brazilian percussionist Helcio Milito (a Carmel resident) has imported pianist Liz Kennon from Los Angeles. Thursday through Saturday nights at Spanish Bay Inn's Traps Lounge.

•Papa Jake and those Abalone Stompers play Big Sur's River Inn on Sunday afternoons.

Fair play

ONE OF the biggest musical extravaganzas in the state takes place not in LA, San Francisco or San Diego, but in the rural community of Paso Robles, just south of here and north of San Luis Obispo.

Not convinced? Try this lineup on for size (playing July 30 through Aug. 11): Diana Ross, Julio Iglesias, M.C. Hammer, Styx, Robert Palmer, Chicago, Nelson, Kenny Loggins, Michael McDonald, Barbara Mandrell, Ricky Van Shelton, George Strait, Kathy Mattea, Righteous Brothers, Lee Greenwood, Brenda Lee, Ricky Skaggs, Doug Kershaw, Bobby Vee, Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, The Sweethearts of the Rodeo, Little River Band, B.J. Thomas, The Lettermen, Three Dog Night, The Johnny Cash Show, The Commodores, Asleep at the Wheel, Charley Pride, Latoya Jackson, Paul Revere & the Raiders, Freddie Cannon, The Coasters, The Shirelles, Juice Newton, Stevie B, Lou Rawls, The Smothers Brothers, Ethan Allen King, Sons of the Pioneers, Pirates of the Mississippi, John Bressler, The John Conlee Show, The Simpsons, The Diamonds, Joe Cool and the Rumlbers, and hypnotist Terry Stokes. Did I leave anyone out?

These are all acts appearing at the California Mid-State Fair, an old-fashioned country fair with big-name musical acts mixed in with the calf judging, cottoncandy and carnival midway rides.

Many of the acts are performing on the smaller stages scattered throughout the huge fairgrounds and are essentially free with a $6 admission to the fair. Others (such as Julio, Nelson, Chicago etc.) are separate admission at the Grandstand Stage.

Tickets can be purchased by calling 1-800-655-3565 from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Have your plastic ready. The fair is located right of Highway 101 in Paso Robles and can be reached by taking virtually any exit (do NOT take the Highway 46 exit, however).

IF YOU missed it last week, here's the lineup for the 19th Annual San Francisco Blues Festival, the oldest ongoing blues festival in the country and perhaps the best.

For Saturday, Sept. 14, from opener to headliner: Guitar Sims & The Fillmore Rockers, Alvin Youngblood Hart, Carey Bell & Tough Luck, Joana Conner Band, John Hammond, Dirty Dozen Brass Band, Clarence Gatemouth Brown, and Etta James & the Roots Band.

For Sunday, Sept. 15, same sequence: Imam Omar Sharriff, Paramount Singers, William Clarke Band, Snooky Pryor and John Nicholas, Rory Block, Otis Clay & Chicago Fire, Queen Ida & Her Bon Temps Zydeco Band, and for the first time at the festival, blues legend B.B. King.

Tickets are $13 in advance, $15 at the gate and $22 for a special two-day ticket (available only in advance), at all BASS/TM Tickets locations, or by calling 1-998-BASS. Parking is free at Crissy Field with free shuttle service to the festival site at the Great Meadow (highly recommended).

The SF Blues Festival may be the best in the country, not only in terms of music, but location, organization and good vibes.

For more info on this event, call (415) 979-5588.

UPCOMING EVENTS with a musical bent on the Monterey Peninsula and outlying areas:

• Jonah & the Whale Watchers, an up-and-coming local reggae band, will play the Monterey Brewing Company on successive Wednesday nights, Aug. 7 and 14. With any luck a proposed Reggae Night there will become a regular on the local music scene.

The band recently played at the First Murphy

Committee's "Raise the Roof" party at the First Murphy site in downtown Carmel and attracted quite a bit of attention, including from one of the local gendarmes, who arrived not more than five minutes after the band started, but stayed in the background, tapped his foot a few times then left. The band attracted a sizeable crowd with their loping, good time world beat. As the sign draped over the fence said, a hip band for a hip roof.

• This doesn't fall under a nightlife heading, but fledgling community TV station KCAH-25 is holding an open house from 7 to 10 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 1 at the new studios, 843 South Main St. in Salinas. KCAH head honcho Jerry Ford is also responsible for the annual Pelican Bent-a-Fit Ball. Check it out for yourself.

• A quickie: Don't forget jazz fusion piano player David Benoit at Doc Ricketts' Lab come Sunday, Aug. 4. Not to be missed. Two shows, 8 and 10:30.

• The August calendar at The Catalyst in Santa Cruz includes LA band Walking Wounded on Dollar Night (Aug. 1), Jellyfish (Aug. 2), Roy Rogers and the Delta Rhythm Kings (Aug. 3), Laura Nyro (Aug. 4), Little Joe and La Familia (Aug. 9), Untouchables (Aug. 10), Paul Kantner's Wooden Ships (Aug. 11), Dictators, a 16-and-over show (Aug. 13), Social Distortion, another 16-and-over show (Aug. 14), Psychefunkapus (Aug. 16) and New Orleans own Dirty Dozen Brass Band (Aug. 27). Weekend shows start at 9:30 p.m. and weekday shows at 9. Info for Catalyst shows can be had by calling 423-1336.

• More quickies: Roger Eddy blows at the Monterey Bay Club Aug. 1-3; Wynton Marsalis and Marcus Roberts are at Paul Masson the same dates, with Barbara Mandrell on Aug. 4 and Kronos Quartet Aug. 9 (Tickets at BASS or 1-741-5181); Jon Hendricks & Co. at Villa Montalvo Aug. 2 (both latter venues are in Saratoga); Friday Night Live Dance Off will be broadcast on KMST-46 at 7 p.m. Aug. 3 and noon Aug. 4. That's the county program to prevent alcohol and drug abuse for teenagers through a peer program; roots rockers Forbidden Pigs return to Doc Ricketts, but I'll be darned if I can't find the club's August schedule. You can try them on your own by calling 649-4241.

Ashland experience...

elaborate stage in a dizzying mixture of history and melodrama. Of special interest is the English (i.e. Shakespearean) depiction of France's heroine and patron saint, Joan of Arc, as an acrobatic, demon-driven vixen and witch capable of amazing feats on battlefield and bedroom.

Terri McMahon as Joan LaPucelle (the English term for The Maid of Orleans) is outstanding, supported by a huge, energetic cast, directed by the veteran Pat Patton.

Brian Swimme offers this succinct advice about attending the Festival: "Plunge into the life of the plays, and one day you will be startled by the discovery of feelings you had not known before: an affection for the human condition, for the frailties of the human will, for the nobility of the spirit that wells up in very generation, no matter how difficult the circumstances of suffering and disillusionment."

For those who consider themselves lovers of great theater, the Ashland experience can rightly be viewed as a journey to a dramatic Mecca, to be undertaken at least once in a lifetime. Some make it every year.

This will be staged, appropriately, in Stevenson House on Houston Street.

The Casa Soberanes on Pacific Street will be the setting for an apology by Comodoro Jones (Michael Jacobs) to Angustias de la Guerra Ord (Mickie Mosley Moorer), for capturing Monterey by mistake.

Both performances begin at 10:45 a.m.

NOTICE OF STREET PAVING WORK

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-SEA
The Public Works Department Contractors will be paving Junipero Avenue from 3rd Avenue to Camino Del Monte, on the 10th and 11th of September 1991, and on 11th Avenue between Torres Street and Junipero Avenue on the 5th and 6th of August 1991. During the work a number of streets will be closed periodically to through traffic. Detours will be well marked. Residents impacted by the construction area may experience limited vehicle access to their homes of up to 8 hours, however, all residents will be able to get in and out of their homes on foot. They will receive individual notification of local traffic restrictions as the work progresses.

There will be some vehicles staging and parking on Guadalupe north of 3rd Avenue, so residents should be especially cautious on the 10th and 11th of September.

Drivers are advised to remain alert to detour changes and to the movement of heavy trucks during the construction period. Special caution must be exercised when driving on Camino Del Monte in the vicinity of Forest Hill Park on the 10th and 11th of September 1991, and on Junipero Avenue (north bound) on the 5th and 6th of August 1991.

A CHAPTER OF CARMEL'S HISTORY

A HISTORIC HOME one of the oldest in Carmel-by-the-Sea, has just come on the market, and we're proud to say we've listed it. What we love most about it—and what you'll love, too—is that it is absolutely unspoiled. Everything about this property exudes the charm of yesteryear. You'll appreciate the generous use of adobe, brick, Carmel stone, and redwood, along with the lovely oak plank floors with their warm patina. In addition to its undeniable charm, the house is situated on a lot of over half an acre, and it has spectacular views of Pebble Beach golf course and Stillwater Cove. Best of all, it's PRICED TO SELL at $1,350,000. Let us arrange a preview for you!

ON THE WATER

A SPARKLING HOME right on the water in Pacific Grove, offering dramatic views of Monterey Bay all the way to Santa Cruz. The living room has bleached oak floors, a fireplace with a mirrored wall, and floor-to-ceiling windows to capture every inch of the breathtaking panorama before you. There's a dining area and an open kitchen with a convenient breakfast bar. This home is fresh, light, and bright—just what a home on the Monterey Peninsula should be! $980,000.
